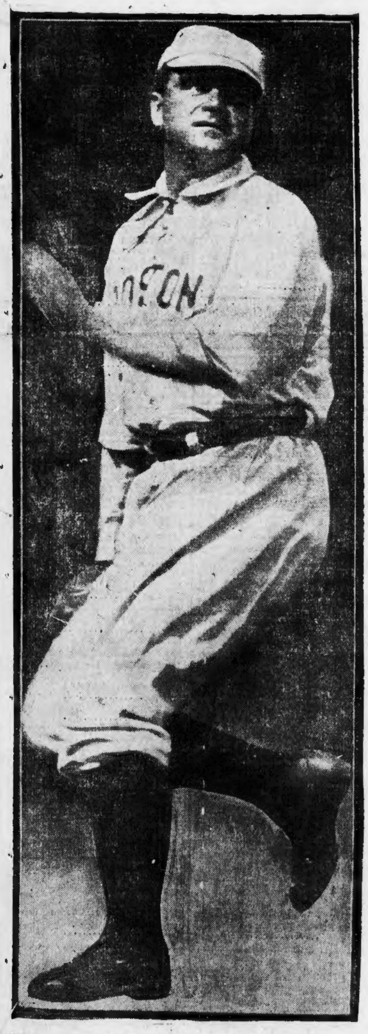
'CHICK' STAHL SUICIDE!



CHARLES SYLVESTER STAHL.

Ex-Manager of Boston American League Baseball Team, who ended life to-day.

Former Manager of the Boston American League Team Takes Life in West Baden, Ind., Hotel—Recently Retired as Manager.

WEST BADEN, Ind., March 28.—Charles Sylvester Stahl ("Chick Stahl), captain of the Boston American Basball Team, committed suicide at his hotel to-day. He drank a large quantity of carbolic acid.

It was given out that his suicide was due to despondency. Back of it there is a trgaedy that caused one of the greatest ball players the world has known to end his own life.

Until a short time ago Stahl was manager as well as captan of the Boston team. Then he was forced out of the manager's position which had been held by James Collins before him. Owner Taylor took charge of the manager's end of the team.

This statement was issued by Stahl shortly after his resignation:

"I resigned because the cares of the club were worrying me to a collapse. I thought I could handle the team when I accepted the management, but did not foresee that I would be unable to sleep. For five days I have been unable to sleep a wink and my mind is on the team every instant of the day and night. I think that everything will go along all right with me as field captain."

Stahl was married on November 14 last to Miss Julia Marie Harmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Harmon of No. 36 Leon street, Roxbury, Mass.

President Taylor, in a statement issued at the time of Stahl's resignation, said:

"I have accepted Stahl's resignation, because there was nothing else for me to do. He has worried himself far more than there was any occasion to worry. We have gathered what I think is a fine team of ball players, and with a fair break of luck I have no doubt the Boston club will give a good account of itself. Stahl will act as field captain and I will be responsible for everything else."

SUICIDE SHOCKS BASEBALL WORLD

The suicide of Chick Stahl comes to the baseball world like a bomb out of a clear sky.

Made captain and manager of the Boston American baseball team this year by President John I. Taylor his future seemed assured and Hub fans saw great prospects of a wonderful career of the team in the championship this year.

Stahl was of peculiar make-up. Impetuous, but good natured he was beloved by patrons of the game and players alike.

The first step that Stahl took showing the change in his mind came this week when he announced to President Taylor that he wished to resign as manager of the team on account of the arduous work attached to it, as he realized that he was unable to swing the big task of managing and captaining the team at the same time.

To his request Mr. Taylor acquiesced, and it was thought that Stahl was entirely satisfied. It was known that he ate but little on account of his extra duties, and for several days lately it was noticed among the players at Little Rock, where the team was practicing, that he was laboring under some stress on his mind.

Defying Doctors, Drags Herself to Tombs

EVELYN IN COLLAPSE

Broken Down by Strain of Husband's Peril, Is Under Medical Care.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Disregarding the orders of her physician, who feared a complete collapse if she left her apartments at the Lorraine to-day, Evelyn Thaw persisted in making the usual visit to her husband in the Tombs.

Hre appearance as she alighted from her carriage at the entrance verified the reports that she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Mrs. J. J. Caine, Evelyn's friend, supported the young wife as she walked into the prison office. Evelyn seemed scarcely able to mount the steps without assistance.

Eyes Red and Swollen.

Never before since the beginning of the great ordeal has the young wife looked so bad. Her eyes were red and swollen from weeping. Dark circles beneath the eyes give her face a strange expression. Her cheeks were hollow and pale.

It was with a visible effort that she smiled a greeting to the keepers as she made her way to her husband's cell. She wore a blue sailor costume and a dark blue hat, with a bunch of violets. A thin white veil failed to conceal the worried and disheartened look in her face.

She made a great effort as she reached her husband's cell to conceal from him the suffering she endured.

Bearing up heroically through fourteen weeks of as great a strain as ever a woman bore, Evelyn Thaw's first great shock came when she was informed that a lunacy commission had been appointed to examine her husband.

BEWILDERED BY BLOWS.

She came from Justice Fitzgerald's court bewildered, blinded by tears, so weak that she had to be supported by two of the attorneys. The appointment of the commission seemed to her as the worst calamity that could have befallen Harry Thaw.

Since that afternoon she has failed rapidly. Those who have seen her said to-day that her condition is pitiable. She has become pale and emaciated. Nervous and restless Evelyn has been unable to sleep at night, and her appetite has failed.

That Mrs. William Thaw is worried about the state of her daughter-in-law's health is shown by the fact that it was the elder woman who insisted that a physician should be in daily attendance. Harry Thaw's mother realizes what a complete breakdown would mean to her son.

Shock of Lunacy Commission's Appointment Too Great to Endure.

It is the young wife who has managed to keep his courage up.

Because of the wife's condition and the effect it will have upon him, the lunacy commission has decided to rush the inquiry with all possible speed. Thaw is anxious to be called as the first witness, and the commission announced that they would probably grant his request and permit him to take the stand at once.

Restless Night in Tombs.

Thaw had a restless night at the Tombs and the keepers said he was in a highly nervous state to-day.

It has been decided that any of the attorneys for either side, and any of the alienists can question Thaw on any subject they please so long as the question does not involve the killing of Stanford White.

MANY FIND LOST GOODS IN LOOT OF TWO BURGLARS

Caught through a woman's quick wit, two burglars arrested in Dorchester yesterday afternoon are being identified right and left to-day as being responsible for some of the numerous burglaries round Boston.

They gave their names as Frank King, alias Bertram Banister, and Samuel C. Hamburger, alias Robert Hilliard. Both are known to the police.

Among the property spread out in the Dorchester police station to-day enough was identified to show that the men are responsible for three burglaries in Dorchester yesterday.

Three Burglaries Yesterday.

Police Inspector Walker A. Smith, at whose home, No. 63 Hancock street, they were caught, identified pieces of jewelry.

Mrs. Jessie M. Gladden of No. 21 Peverell street identified jewelry. Mrs. Gladden also lost $65 in money.

Elmer B. Sawtelle of No. 11 DeWolfe street lost $55 in money and some jewelry. He found the latter among the collection taken from the burglars.

From East Boston came Mrs. Mildred W. Daum of No. 74 Trenton street and Mrs. Grace M. Dalton and Mrs. Annie B. Rollins of No. 180 Trenton street. Mrs. Daum's house was broken into about a week ago and considerable jewelry stolen. She returned in time to see the burglars walking down the steps, but then did not know that her house had been robbed. She said that King and Hamburger were the men she saw.

Mrs. Dalton, who is the wife of the clerk of the East Boston court, and Mrs. Rollins also saw the men that day and identified them. Other East Boston burglaries are to be brought against the two by Special Officer O'Neil.

Four Breaks in Brighton.

Special Officer Driscoll came from Brighton to look the men over. He said he thought he could fasten about four breaks in that district on them.

The Dorchester police are looking up other people to secure possible identifications.

In Court to-day King and Hamburger waived examination and were held in a total of $3,400 each for the Superior Court. Eight hundred dollars was imposed for each of three burglaries and $1,000 for having burglars' tools in their possession.

It was through Mrs. Jennie Sprague, of No. 69 Hancock street, that the men were caught. Mrs. Sprague was sitting in the front room of her home with her daughter, Miss Edith Sprague, and Miss Florence W. Bryant. The two men came to the door and asked Mrs. Sprague if a man named Sullivan lived there. They were told that no such person lived in the house.

They went away and, curious, Mrs. Sprague watched them. She saw them go up the steps of the house occupied by Inspector Smith. Knowing there was no one at home, Mrs. Sprague went to the telephone and called up the Dorchester station.

Got the Men After a Fight.

A patrol wagon with Patrolmen William B. Walker, James Flood and William Stinson dashed up just as the burglars were leaving the house. Walker got King, and, despite the fact that the burglar tried to draw a revolver, bent his back over a fence. Hamburger put up a fight, but the two were finally subdued.

"If I could have got my gun out certainly I would have used it," King said to Walker.

At the station a number of diamond rings, a gold brooch, a pearl beaded necklace, a steel purse, in which there was between $40 and $60, and several other articles of jewelry were found in the pockets of the men.

To Sergeant Mains, who asked them if they were connected with the Albion street gang which terrorized Dorchester a few weeks ago, Hamburger replied:

"No, that gang is not in our class. It is composed of bunglers."

Had Supply of False Keys.

King and Hamburger were heavily armed when captured and were well supplied with false keys.

Hamburger was released from state prison on December 26, where he served a four years' term for highway robbery in Boston.

Yesterday he and King were in Joseph Lyons's barroom at Glover's Corner, and, according to the police, one of them was overheard saying, "We will go out and get the swag this afternoon."

King is nineteen years old and says his home is at No. 137 Cambridge street, Boston. Hamburger is twenty-five years old and lives at No. 122 Cambridge street, he told the police.

REWARD FOR TRAINWRECKERS

PITTSBURG, March 28.—A reward of $5,500 has been offered by the Pennsylvania railroad for clues that will lead to the arrest of trainwreckers, who deliberately derailed the Keystone Express at Wilmerding, Pa. No one was killed. It is the second train wreck in this State within a short time.

WHITE PLAGUE DEATH KING ALFONSO'S FATE?

ROME, March 28.—Private information received at the Quirinal intimates that King Alphonso, who has been in ill health for some time, is suffering from tuberculosis, which has worked such havoc in the Bourbon family. It is said that the Spanish court is extremely apprehensive as to his condition.

On May 17, 1902, Alphonso XIII. became King of Spain in fact. At that date he was officially declared of age. He was born on May 17, 1886, several months after the death of his father, Alphonso XII.

In accordance with the traditional custom of Spain, he was declared to be the King the moment he was born. From his birth until May 17, 1902, his mother acted as Queen Regent. It was in October of 1887 that the Baby Monarch first presided over the Parliament of his kingdom.

EXTRA "CLARICE" MATINEE.

So popular has William Gillette's "Clarice" proven at the Hollis Street Theatre that it has been found necessary to waive his rule against Wednesday matinees and he will give a special performance next Wednesday afternoon.

HURT AT FOOTBALL; STUDENT IS INSANE

CLEVELAND, O., March 28.—George A. Rundell, a student of Baldwin University, at Berea, has become insane at his home, No. 5,717 Denison avenue, as the result of an injury received in a football game last season. He was sent to the Cleveland State Hospital to-day.

FREEDOM OR DEATH FATE OF GIRL SLAYER

Prosecution Demands To-day, Conviction of Jennie Burch, Declaring Her Sane.

DEFENCE ASKS ACQUITTAL

Special to the Boston American.

CARMEL, N. Y., March 28.—District Attorney Weeks goes before the jury to-day and asks that Jennie Ruth Burch, the fifteen-year-old slayer of the Winship baby, be convicted of murder in the first degree.

James Dempsey, chief counsel for the girl prisoner, will ask the jury to acquit her, on the ground that she is sane at the present time. Neither State nor defence will make any attempt to have the child committed to an institution for the insane.

This remarkable little girl murderess is likely to learn her fate to-day. It is her birthday.

This sudden change in the conduct of the trial of Baby Winship's slayer came after Dr. William A. Granger, alienist for the court and defence, had declared that Jennie Burch was now sane. Dr. Granger's statement created a profound impression.

Says Mrs. Winship Nagged Her.

Another turn was given this unusual case by statements made by Dr. Granger after court last night.

"Jennie told me," he said, "that Mrs. Winship nagged her so that she determined to commit suicide. She also said that she loved the Winship baby so dearly that she feared to die without taking him with her."

In cross-examination Dr. Granger admitted that while the girl was sane now he did not consider it safe to allow her to go at large.

Jennie Ruth Burch, talking to an AMERICAN reporter last night, spoke for the first time of the father who disowned and deserted her in her babyhood.

As she chatted, the girl sat rocking little Loretta Barry, daughter of the sheriff.

Is Fifteen Years Old To-day.

"I will be fifteen years old to-morrow," said Jennie, "and I know that my case will go to the jury in the afternoon. I can ask no happier birthday present than that the jury will set me free or send me to some school where I may learn all good things.

"I want them to let me go where I can learn to be a school teacher and do some good in the world.

"I heard my mother, big Annie Burch, on the stand to-day name a man as my father. He is rich, married and has children.

"I wonder what he looks like. I would like to see him. He can't be a man, or he would never have treated by mother and me so badly. I don't feel any spirit of revenge against him, but I do think he must be something like a wild animal.

Would Never Call Him Father.

"I would never call him my father now. My dear grandfather, Philo Burch, has always been a kind father to me. He and Grandmother Burch have been the only father and mother I have ever known. I I never knew that big Annie was my mother until Mrs. Winship told me so.

"Then I took a trip to her home in Connecticut, where she lives with her husband and four children. I asked her if it was true that she was mother and she cried and kissed me and said, 'Yes.'

"I hope they won't send me to a reform school. I saw girls who had been in them at the jail in White Plains and they were as bad as could be. I want to live with nice people and become a good woman."

SOLD HIS VOTE FOR WHISKEY

Harry L. Ricker, of Worcester, arraigned in the Dedham District Court this morning on a larceny charge, created a sensation when he declared, under oath, that he was bribed to go to Medfield on town election day, March 4, when the alleged larceny was committed, and vote "yes" on the license referendum. He declined to say who asked him to play the part of a "floater." He said that immediately after casting his vote he was given a quart of whiskey, and proceeded to drink it. After that he forgot what occurred during his stay in town, he testified.

Ricker, who is twenty-eight and unmarried, was accused of obtaining $6 from E. C. Crocker of Medfield on a worthless check. The defendant pleaded that he found the check in an ash barrel. He was fined $50 and was committed to jail in default of payment.

SENATE TIES ON NO VETERAN TAX

The Senate split squarely in two yesterday—17 to 17—on the question of rejecting the Weeks-Cassidy bill exempting the property of Civil War veterans from taxation, to the amount of $2,000, when the holdings shall not be valued at more than $5,000.

Senator Cassidy of Adams, the son of a deceased veteran, led the fight for the bill in the face of an adverse report from Senator Stevens's Committee on Ways and Means. Senator Stevens took the ground that the bill is an injustice and will work a hardship on those small towns which proved most patriotic when the nation was in peril.

MAN FEARS WILD RABBITS—INSANE?

RUTLAND, Vt., March 28.—Declaring that he was being pursued by a crocodile and that he had disturbed a nest of savage rabbits, which had started to chase him, an unknown man plunged into the office of Superintendent B. L. Morgan at the House of Correction and asked to be locked up. He does not know his own name or where he came from. The authorities will examine him for insanity to-day.

GIRL SINGER DIES OF TUBERCULOSIS

CHICAGO, March 28.—Miss Jewell Seeley, nineteen years old, formerly a member of the "Prince of Pilsen" company, taking the part of the Frisco girl in the song of the cities, died on Monday at the residence of her parents in Allegan, Mich., after a two years' fight against tuberculosis.

CRY FOR FEDERAL AID TO AVERT RAILROAD STRIKE

Managers of 40 Roads Alarmed by Prospect of Huge Labor Tie-Up in the West.

CHICAGO, March 28.—With the most gigantic railroad strike in history about to be called, the general managers of over forty Western systems, embracing 95,000 miles of track, demand government interference, in order that the entire railroad business of the West may not be paralyzed.

A formal demand will be made at Washington for arbitration under the Erdman act. When arbitration was suggested by the committee of general managers in conference with union representatives the employes refused to arbitrate.

Time for Arbitration Past.

Anticipating such a suggestion, the men voted that the time for arbitration had passed. They declare that during the early stages of the conference they suggested arbitration, but that the managers would not consider it.

The situation is now realized by the railway managers to be most critical.

The strike when called will affect every railroad West of a line drawn from Winnipeg through Chicago to New Orleans.

The general managers met last night and decided to demand government interference and so notified the representatives of the employes.

It may be two days or it may be a week before the strike order will be issued by Grand Chiefs Morrissey and Garretson. A mass of minor details must be arranged before the final action can be taken. There is but one thing that can avert the strike and that is the backdown of the committee of general managers.

Date to be Set To-day.

Following the breaking off of negotiations, the 196 representatives of the employes went into session and voted that a strike be called. The date for the calling out of the men will be set to-day.

It is possible that the decision may be reached to only tie some one large system as a practical demonstration of what can be accomplisehd and thus avert the disastrous effect on business in general that would follow a general tie-up.

HOLD CONFERENCE ON RAILROADS AT THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 28.—A policy for the Federal regulation of railroads of the United States was outlined at an important conference held at the White House, at which the railroad situation in general was discussed. The conference lasted over two hours. Those present included Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, Secretary of the Interior Garfield, Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, Chairman Knapp and Special Counsel F. B. Kellogg of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and all members of that commission except Messrs. Cockrell and Prouty.

It is learned that the President is thoroughly alarmed over the situation, and that he has practically decided to reverse the former opinion expressed by him through his mouthpiece, Secretary of State Root, several months ago, when he threatened that unless the various states acted the Federal Government would be obliged to exert its authority to bring about needed reforms neglected by the states.

STOPS TRIAL TO FINE DRUNKEN JUROR

FALL RIVER, March 28.—Stopping the trial of a civil suit in Superior Court, yesterday, Judge Lawton ordered the arrest of Juror James E. Swords on a charge of drunkenness. Swords was at once arraigned, fined $20 and excused from further jury service.

JUMPS INTO CHIMNEY; STARVES TO DEATH

SUFFOLK, Va., March 28.—Attracted by circling vultures around a deserted house, searchers broke in and found, wedged in the chimney, the body of Thomas Deloatch, 18 years old, who has been missing three weeks. It is believed that the young man jumped into the chimney to commit suicide. He probably starved to death.

GIRL TEACHER HEADS SEARCH FOR ABDUCTORS

Leading Band of Farmers on Hunt for Marvin Boy, Cheers Them With New Hope.

DOVER MAN SUSPECTED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

DOVER, Del., March 28.—Pretty Lucy Killen, the school teacher who was held up in the woods by two strange men believed to be the kidnappers of little Horace Marvin, to-day headed the band of detectives and farmers who are searching for the abductors. With her assistance the detectives are more hopeful than they have been for weeks.

Jealousy among the detectives is to blame for the failure to arrest the men before they escaped. The Pinkerton men did not conceal their feelings when they learned that during their absence Dr. Marvin had called upon the Sheriff, and that it had been left for him to arouse the country side.

Girl's Story Unshaken.

They immediately attempted to discredit the girl's story, but to-day they found it unassailable.

The girl was taken to see one of the men so closely connected with the case that he has stated that he expected to be arrested.

She quickly shook her head and said: "I have seen that man before. He is not one of the two men who attacked me."

Henry Knight, a farmer, living near the spot where the attack occurred, today made an affidavit to having seen two men driving at full speed a few moments after. Gilbert Marvel, a farmer, living near the Marvin place, swore to seeing the same two men about ten minutes later.

Harry Knox of Magnolia also made an affidavit to having seen them.

Dover Man Suspected.

Suspicion has centred upon a man living not far from Dover, who cannot be found. It has been learned that he has been away from home almost constantly since the Marvin boy was missing, but has been back two or three times for a few hours.

DRAPER DOG IN DISGRACE, PUT IN POUND

HOPEDALE, March 28.—Lieutenant Governor Draper's prize Boston terrier is in disgrace. Arrested in company with a plebeian bulldog on the charge of malicious mischief, the terrier spent the night in the pound. None of the Draper family was at home to bail him out. At an early hour to-day steps were being taken to secure the necessary papers for his release.

In the absence of his usual watchers yesterday the Draper terrier wandered off into the road and there fell in company with another dog. They trotted off together. The bull terrier led the Draper pet to the chicken yard of Mrs. John Moore on Depot street.

The Draper terrier had never done anything like that before. But the other dog started the fun by jumping into the midst of a fine flock of hens. One fell and the bull proceeded to enjoy a meal.

It didn't take the society dog long to decide that it was fun, too. Another hen passed away, and he proceeded to dispose of fresh fowl. In the midst of it Mrs. Moore appeared. She got help in the person of dog officer Walter Durgin, who took both into custody.

'WARE CLAMS, WARNS HEALTH COMMISSIONER

Lobsters Broiled and Boiled Are Safe, but Oysters and Mud Bivalves to Be Cooked Well.

DECLARES CHOWDER O. K.

The report of a bacteriological examination of the shellfish of Boston harbor, made by Health Commissioner Michael W. Norris, has been submitted to Acting Mayor Berwin.

That all lobsters do not come from Boston is the first statement in the report. Dr. Norris says, in fact, that but a small portion of them do, the majority coming from Maine and Nova Scotia. After-theatre diners will be pleased to learn that the danger from eating broiled live and boiled live lobsters is nil, so far as bacteria are concerned.

Dr. Norris, in performing a series of over 100 experiments, had oysters, clams and lobsters cooked in every conceivable form and personally partook of them. Clams from Boston harbor he found are grossly polluted with sewage organisms, while those from other places are affected to a much less extent.

Dr. Norris discovered no oyster beds in Boston harbor and his conclusions formed by an examination of those taken from the Providence river, Chesapeake bay and the Cape leads him to state that oysters are comparatively free from contamination. He advises, however, against eating them in the fancy roast style, as the amount of heat they are subjected to in thus cooking is not sufficient, he says, to render them absolutely sterile. Oyster stews and oysters fried in crumbs, too, Dr. Norris says, are subjected to insufficient heat, while the high heat to which scalloped oysters are subjected renders them perfectly safe.

Politicians arranging for clam chowder parties for the Summer are informed that the danger from chowder is very slight, while clams fried in fat are also rendered free from organisms. Steam clams, Dr. Norris states, are not rendered absolutely sterile. In conclusion he says:

"It is a question whether shellfish taken from sewage-polluted waters are a safe article of food, even if all infectious organisms have been destroyed by cooking."

SNEERS FOR HAT OF MRS. LONGWORTH

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Because her newest Spring turban bears on one side a large white dove, with wings outspread, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth's Easter hat has caused a sensation among the National Audubon Society and bird lovers of the capital. Society women in Washington had practically tabooed birds on hats, and it is probable that the Audubon Society will appoint a committee to request her to have the hat remodeled. Mrs. Roosevelt is an officer of the society, and the President is a bird lover, and they may be requested to use their influence with Mrs. Longworth.

DRAPER'S SON IN A WEDDING OF MYSTERY

Dainty New York Actress and Jilted Man Reported Married.

FAMILY REMAIN SILENT

Boston society was amazed to-day by the report from New York that B. H. Bristow Draper, son of the Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts had married Queena Stanford, stage dancer and for years past under Frohman management, as the immediate sequel of a breaking of troth with him by Miss Alice Marjorie Ray of Franklin, one of the richest and most admired young women in the State.

"I will not discuss this rumor at all," said Lieutenant-Governor Draper, the Hopedale mill owner, to-day. It was said at the Draper office in this city, and at the big Hopedale mills, that the whole family was deeply exercised over the stories which have been in circulation for several days concerning Bristow Draper's heart affairs. Outside of the millionaire circles, comprising the Draper and Ray families and their confidential friends, the whole affair is a deep mystery.

Society was astounded when it learned that Miss Ray had severed her engagement to wed young Mr. Draper. The engagement had existed only about three months and it was well known that plans were being made for a most elaborate wedding in June. Then came the report—like a bolt from a clear sky—that Miss Ray had said in effect:

"I Can Never Marry You."

"It is all over between us, I can never be your wife. I wish you well, but it is not to be."

Miss Ray left for the South to spend the Spring in the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Wolfe of Louisville, Ky. Bristow Draper could not be found in his Boston haunt, and the mills in Hopedale, where he was learning to be a manufacturer in preference to devoting himself to law as his family had wished, knew him no more. It was said that he had gone to New Hampshire and from there would depart for a long trip in the West.

But there was not even a whisper in society circles regarding Miss Queena Sanford until dispatches from New York intimated that he was the young millionaire who had made her his wife. She suddenly and mysteriously left the Sam Bernard company, which is playing "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," in Wallack's Theatre, that city, on Saturday last. That young Draper knew this stage beauty was not known on the Back Bay on Fifth avenue.

If his clubmates were aware of any such acquaintanceship, they did not discuss it in drawing rooms and boudoirs.

Draper Seen at Theatre.

The report that Draper had married Queena Sanford became public in a peculiar manner. A simple little telegram from Boston said that society had been perplexed by the col and authoritative statement issued by Mrs. W. Ray of Franklin that the engagement of her daughter, Alice, to Bristow Draper had been broken, and that henceforth the two young people would be nothing to each other.

Some inquisitive person trailed the recent movements of Mr. Draper and then intimated that the reason the engagement was broken was that Mr. Draper adored Miss Sanford, the dancer.

Mr. Draper has spent much time recently in New York and most of the time he has been in the vicinity of Wallack's Theatre.

It was soon declared that the quiet, wealthy young man who had been showing such devotion to Miss Sanford was none other than Mr. Draper, of Massachusetts.

Since Miss Sanford quit the company Mr. Draper has not been seen about the theatre.

Actress Told Wedding Plan.

Miss Sanford's departure from the "Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer" last Saturday afternoon was so sudden that the management was astonished.

The fascinating young woman gave no other reason than: "I'm going away from here."

But in the company Miss Sanford had a confidant to whom she said she was going to marry a very rich young man—much richer than "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer."

Miss Sanford is a very different type of girl from Miss Ray, who, after three months' acquaintance with young Mr. Draper as his fiancee, decided that she did not wish to be his life-long mate.

Miss Sanford is tall, lithe and shapely in figure. She dances with a grace and abandon which entrances audiences.

Thrall of Twinkling Feet.

Dancing girls in the past have captured the hearts of kings; so, perhaps, even a Draper of Hopedale is not immune from the thrall of twinkling feet that move in perfect rhythm. She has lustrous eyes and a very shapely brow, upon which she is fond of wearing hair in severely classic folds. All the theatrical world admits that this former stage mate of Edna May is very, very attractive in person.

TRIES TO PAWN FINE WATCH; IS ARRESTED

Lawrence C. Duffy, who is alleged to have served time in Massachusetts and in New York, was arrested this morning by Inspectors Rooney and McAuley for having in his possession a watch, valued at $200, which he is suspected of having stolen. On the watch which Duffy was caught in the act of pawning is engraved the name "H. C. Cutter." Duffy says he was given the watch on the street by a man whose name he does not know.

300 PEASANTS SLAIN IN PITCHED BATTLE

BUCHAREST, Roumania, March 28.—Three hundred peasants have been killed in a desperate battle between the revolutionists and the military at Stareskie.

There have been two fierce fights at Mastanestir, in one of which Lieutenant Jonilescu lost his life.

The peasants tore the body of the lieutenant to pieces and danced around the fragments to wild music.

Ruthless cruelty is shown by the insurgents. Inflamed by the feud spirit they are taking revenge for the wrongs they have suffered, sparing neither young nor old.

Many of the landlord class have been burned to death after their bodies and limbs had first been enrolled in thick twists of hay or straw.

Even children, the refugees add, have been hacked to death by the revolting peasants.

More than 200 peasants were killed or wounded in the disorders throughout the empire yesterday.

The King has summoned all his available troops to defend the capital and a desperate attempt will be made to beat off the columns of peasants, who have been joined by thousands of reservists, and are marching on this city.

The situation is grave and a state of war exists that seriously threatens the government.

Large numbers of peasant rioters were killed in conflicts at Braila and Papulescha, and many rioters were shot down by the soldiers as they attempted to enter the town of Galatz. Sanguinary fighting is also reported at Vlasta, near Stereske and at Craiova.

Deadly conflict between the forces of peasants and those of the government are reported in the various provinces of Moldavia, while the booming of cannon in the outskirts of Bucharest proclaims that King Charles and the royal family are in grave danger of capture by the rebels.

Although the garrisons in the city's eighteen forts have been heavily reenforced and a strong guard surrounds the royal palace, the government's confidence in the army has been shaken, because of the wholesale desertions among the reservists.

Grave disorders are reported on the estates of King Charles at Posina, and troops have been sent there to protect the royal domains.

Outbreaks are of almost hourly occurrence, and already scores of villages have been given to the torch, after the stores had been sacked. Led by three students, two thousand peasants are burning and sacking the city of Petreceu, where the palace of Prince Stirbey is among the looted buildings.

In the hope of ending the civil war, King Charles has made an appeal to the people, through the Official Gazette. He asks them to co-operate with him in the re-establishment of tranquility and promises the immediate suppression of some of the heavier taxes and the cultivation of the farm lands by the State, or their lease direct to the peasants.

LEAPS FROM ENGINE; SAVES BABE IN RACE

Racing with his own locomotive as it approached the Faulkner street station in Malden to-day, Engineer Stowell tried frantically to outstrip the great iron horse as it bore down upon two-year-old Roland Robinson of No. 21 Drown's Court, as he was toddling across the track to a coal yard nearby, where the father was at work.

A small crowd of persons standing on the station platform gazed with horror at the scene and cried to the engineman to run harder and faster, as though he were not already trying to do so. Too late! The cowcatcher of the huge machine struck the baby, bore it down between the ties, and when the engine, with a mighty snort, for it had been reversed before Engineer Stowell leaped to race with it for the child, had come to a full stop little Roland lay right under the hot firebox.

Without a thought of danger to himself, the engineer dropped to his knees and then crawled under his locomotive. He drew little Roland out from under the engine, amid the cries of the baby and the cheeers of the people who had seen the heroic and successful effort to save the childs life.

Dr. Charles D. McCarthy, Mayor of Malden, was called and found that unless th baby had sustained internal injuries h was no worse for his dangerous experienc There were no broken bones, no bruis and even no scratches on the tender ski

THAW SANITY PROOF RESTS ON HIMSELF

Lunacy Commission Plans to Call Prisoner First Witness.

TO MAKE PHYSICAL TESTS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 28.—When the Thaw lunacy commission met this afternoon for its initial session it was announced that Harry Thaw himself would probably be the first person to take the stand.

Before going from his cell to the Supreme Court room in which his trial is conducted, and where the commission decided to hold its inquiry, Harry Thaw expressed an eager desire to be examined at once. He had made a special request of his attorneys that they induce the commission to call him first and get through with him.

Whether or not Thaw goes to Matteawan now depends entirely on himself. His attorneys declare he is able to demonstrate to the lunacy commission that he is perfectly sane to-day and fully capable of advising them.

To Be Examined.

Thaw will be subjected to a physical examination.

If the physical tests prove him insane the lunacy board will so report immediately without going to the length of examining other witnesses or wading through the thousands of pages of testimony bearing on his mental condition in the record of his trial. If the examination of the defendant does now show Thaw to be insane the lunacy board may require several weeks to complete its work.

It was stated to-day that no sitting will be held to-morrow on account of it being Good Friday and that an adjournment might be taken until Monday or Tuesday.

Evidence in Pamphlet Form.

District Attorney Jerome has had printed in pamphlet form all of the testimony adduced at the trial which touches on the sanity of Thaw at any time of his life.

Nothing, however, has been included in the pamphlet which touches on the slaying of Stanford White. These were printed for the easy reference of the members of the commission. Thaw's lawyers also had printed many documents to be used for reference during the inquiry.

HELD FOR ROBBERY TWO OLD SOLDIERS

AUGUSTA, Me., March 28.—James and Jacob Granger were sentenced for selling liquor yesterday, and held in $200 bail each on a charge of attacking and robbing of his pension money Dennis Rafferty of the Soldiers' Home at Togus. Charles Grier was held in the same sum on a charge of attacking and robbing Timothy Tewksbury, also of the Soldiers' Home.

FOUR SUBWAY STATIONS, CRY OF CAMBRIDGE

Ex-Mayor Daly Gives Strong Reasons Against Elevated Plan for Only Two.

MADE ADDRESS LAST NIGHT

Former Mayor Augustine J. Daly of Cambridge, leading the fight against the Boston Elevated for the establishment of four stations in the proposed subway from the bridge to Harvard square instead of two, told the Cambridge Citizens' Trade Association last night that the company should not be allowed to build a subway through Cambridge wholly for the benefit of outlying towns.

In 1905, Mr. Daly said, President Bancroft of the Elevated was of the opinion that four stations beside the Harvard square terminal were necessary for local traffic. In his argument, the former Mayor said:

"The problem of the location of stations on the subway in Cambridge should be of vital importance to the thousands of people who work in Boston and live in Cambridge.

Cambridge Workers Interested.

"This subway is primarily for the service of Cambridge. That part of our population which must reach their places of employment between 6 and 8 o'clock in the morning and return between 5 and 7 in the evening is especially interested.

"The Citizens' Committee on Subway Stations advocate four stations in Cambridge, one-half apart. The plan proposed by the Elevated Railway Company provides for but one station at Central square between Harvard Square in Cambridge and Park street in Boston, a distance of three and one-fourth miles. The company's plan means that there would be but two places in Cambridge, namely at Central Square and Harvard Square, where a person could enter or leave the subway. This in our opinion is unfair to a large share of the people within easy walking distance of the subway.

"We advocate a station at Central square for the service of the people who reside in its vicinity and for the thousands of operatives who are employed in manufacturing plants near it as well as for the transferring of the passengers to Park street who reach this point by the Broadway, Hampshire street and Beacon street lines of surface cars.

"We advocate a station half way from Kendall to Central square for the accommodation of the 5,500 people who live in its neighborhood and for the operatives employed in such manufacturing plants as Ivers & Pond piano factory, L. C. Chase Company and numbers of other large concerns employing thousands of people in that part of our city.

"Every one agrees that there should be a station at Central square.

Would Benefit 5,000.

"We advocate a station half way between Central and Harvard squares for the service of more than 5,000 people who live within easy walking distance of it. This station can be made as convenient and as serviceable as any local station on the route by having a passageway from Green street on a level with the station and an entrance near Putnam square, besides the entrance directly from Massachusetts avenue. It will accommodate the enormous number of people who take the cars at Putnam square as well as those from Dana Hill and the Green street district as far down as Western avenue.

The terminal at Harvard Square will serve the passengers from the West and North.

"The running time from Harvard Square to Park street, making four stops, will be ten and one-half minutes, according to the Elevated Company's figures. It will be about eight minutes from say Dana street, six and one-fourth minutes from Central square, four and one-half from a station at or near Portland street, and two and three-fourths minutes from Kendall square.

People Need Four Stations.

"These four stations will accommodate the people. One will not. The transportation company get its franchise because it promises to serve all the people alike within reasonable limits and not to discriminate against the minority in favor of the majority. We claim that it will be discrimination against the people living and doing business between Central square and the river and between Central and Harvard squares if they are not given an opportunity to reasonably and conveniently use the subway by the establishment of stations for their benefit.

"The Company should not be allowed to build a tunnel through Cambridge wholly for the benefit of the outlying towns. We want the subway to contribute to the comfort and convenience of the people in Cambridge and increase the taxable property. Cambridge furnishes 80 per cent. of the passenger traffic in the district where the subway is to be constructed."

PORTION OF ETHEL'S LETTER

GIVES UP $10,000,000 TO WED MAN OF HER CHOICE

Bank President's Widow, Mentioned in Morse Divorce Affair, Announces Betrothal in Society Romance.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 28.—For the love of a man, Mrs. Catherine Gelshenen, widow of the former president of the Garfield National Bank, announces that she will forfeit $10,000,000.

The announceent of her engagement to Henry J. Braker, a wealthy importer living at No. 232 East Seventy-first street, is said to have been made by her to her intimate friends.

When Mr. Gelshenen died a few years ago he left to his widow a life interest in his $10,000,000 estate with the proviso that if she re-married she was to forfeit everything and all of the money would go to their children.

Mentioned in Morse Affair.

The romance in which Mrs. Gelshenen, who still appears quite young and beautiful, despite the fact that she is the mother of a married son and two marriageable daughters, has figured in society since the death of Mr. Gelshenen.

Charles W. Morse, the ice king, was business partner of Mr. Gelshenen and became Mrs. Gelshenen's manager after the death of the banker. Society frequently said that Mrs. Gelshenen would marry Mr. Morse, whose millions would take the place of the $10,000,000 she would lose by marrying him. But that romance failed, although it was given much prominence at the time of the Dodge-Morse divorce scandal.

The District Attorney wanted Mrs. Gelshenen to appear as a witness against Abe Hummel and she fled to Europe. After the case was over she returned and issued a statement that she knew nothing of the Dodge-Morse case, and in this statement she treated Mr. Morse, who had married Mrs. Dodge, with marked coldness.

Upsets Another Romance.

The announcement now that Mrs. Gelshenen is to marry Mr. Braker upsets another romance which she herself started a few months ago at a dinner in London at which she announced her engagement to another man. She then told the other guests at the dinner, which was given in her honor that she had promised to wed Henry Van Cutsen, the dinner host.

VT. MAN HELD FOR LARCENY IN LONDON

MORRISVILLE, Vt., March 28.—Fred L. Larraway, alias Fred L. Lee, a native of this town, has been arrested in London, Eng., for the Albany, N. Y., police on a charge of grand larceny. Larraway was employed in the city treasurer's office in Albany and is accused of keeping money entrusted with him belonging to city taxpayers.

GIRL WRITES AMERICAN TO FIND FATHER

Print This Letter and Picture in Your Paper, She Says, and He Will Come.

SISTER WANTS HIM TOO

Special to the Boston American.

LOWELL, March 28.—Twelve-year-old Ethel Fenton writes to the BOSTON AMERICAN, asking its aid in finding her father in order that she may see him again.

She wants to find him right away, so he may hear her sing Easter Sunday in a church concert. She so adds that her younger sister wants to "see papa." The letter is as follows:

> "236 Chelmsford Street, Lowell.
> "Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:
>
> "I am a little Lowell girl of twelve years and need your help. I want to find my papa. Will you help me? I think he is in Boston, and will you print this letter and picture in your paper. He will find me.
>
> "I am going to take part in an Easter concert in the Chelmsford Street Baptist Church and would like to have my papa hear me.
>
> "Please print this right away, for the sooner I find my papa the better I shall feel. Thanking you for your help I remain,
>
> "Yours very hopefully,
> "ETHEL MAUDE FENTON.
>
> "P. S.—And my sister, Pearl, would like to see papa, too. Last time we heard from papa he was in Lynn. That was two years ago. You would make my sister and I two happy little girls if you will find papa.
>
> "Papa's name is John R. Fenton."

John R. Fenton was divorced from his wife four years ago. The last the family heard from him he was in Lynn. The mother has since married again, becoming the wife of A. Gordon Dewar. The children have fondly remembered their own father, however, and Ethel is especially anxious to see him.

In her childish eagerness to let her father known what she wishes she has written to the BOSTON AMERICAN this letter, hoping that somewhere in the broad circulation of the paper her father will see her letter and respond to its request.

BURNS
INSTANTLY RELIEVED AND HEALED BY
"The Household Surgeon"

IN case of a Burn or Scald, whether slight or serious, the air must first be excluded to relieve the pain. DR. PORTER'S ANTISEPTIC HEALING OIL, the Household Surgical Dressing, when applied to Burns, forms over the parts an Oily Film, which excludes the air and instantly relieves the pain. The preparation is a combination of medicinal qualities, which antiseptically cleanses the burned parts, allays and takes out all of the inflammation and assists Nature in the quick formation of clean, new flesh and skin, without any scar. DR. PORTER'S ANTISEPTIC HEALING OIL can be easily applied by any one, and should be kept on hand always as the most efficient preparation obtainable for Burns and Scalds. It is continually used by all who give it a first trial. Nearly all druggists sell it. 25c.

LEFT BY 'SILENT' SMITH RICHEST SOCIETY WIDOW

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, March 28.—By the death at Tokio, Japan, of James Henry Smith, known as "Silent Smith" and frequently spoken of as the "seventh wealthiest man in the world," his widow, who was the divorced wife of W. Rhinelander Stewart, becomes the world's richest society widow.

Mrs. Smith was Miss Annie M. Armstrong of Baltimore and Philadelphia. She married Mr. Stewart in 1879 and obtained a divorce from him in South Dakota, August, 3, 1906. A few days after the decree was granted she sailed with her daughter, Miss Anita Stewart, for England, and her marriage to "Silent Smith" occurred the following month.

The late multimillionaire inherited his great wealth from his uncle, George Smith, who bequeathed his nephew a fortune of $50,000,000. Since coming into the inheritance, Mr. Smith increased his estate until now it is estimated at between $60,000,000 and $75,000,000. Most of his fortune was in high class investment securities.

PROBING R. R. PASS GRAFT.

CHICAGO, March 28.—The Federal Grand Jury is probing the violation of the railway pass and franking privileges here. Many railway officials and employes have been summoned to testify.

'USEFULNESS OVER,' DOCTOR TAKES POISON

"I have lived long enough; my days of usefulness are over," said Dr. J. L. Cowan of No. 48 Tennyson street; and with that he completed with exactness all of his plans and deliberately ended his own life upon the top of a hill near Swampscott, a spot where in the full vigor of his health he loved to go and pass a quiet hour.

Taking seriously the after-dinner jocose philosophy of Dr. William Osler, Dr. Cowan, for many years one of the best known Spiritualists of Boston, yesterday, armed with a bottle of whiskey and a phial of morphine pills, went to the site of the Summer camping grounds of his fellow-believers and wooed death.

When his body was found, as though in peaceful slumber, by a man whose home was not far from Camp Progress, a carefully written note told who he was, and that his body should be cremated and his brother, Attorney Lorenzo Cowan, No. 77 Summer street, notified.

To his friends Dr. Cowan had often expressed his belief that when a man's days of use in the world were ended he would be better out of it. He was born in Kingston, Me., fifty-five years ago.

For years he travelled extensively, practicing magnetic healing. He was well known all over New England.

The body is not to be cremated in accordance with his wish, but is to be sent to his old home in Maine, where it will be interred.

ARIZONA COPPER-GOLD IS GOING UP!

First from 30c to 40c next Saturday at midnight, as I warned you last Sunday—which means a profit of 33 1-3 per cent to you, if you act at once. Shares will advance each week to par—$1.00—and beyond, as rapidly as conditions will permit.

Within 90 days from this date this property should be earning several hundred dollars per day clear profit. That means quick dividends—good, big dividends. You won't have to wait long to realize on this investment. It isn't going to be a long drawn out affair.

But to protect yourself fully you must do this now: Buy the 30c stock for the raise! Act at once! Your subscription must positively be post-marked not later than midnight Saturday, March 30, if you want to make the quick profit of 33 1-3 per cent.

The safest way, probably, will be for you to wire your reservation of stock, stating the number of shares you want at the low price, 30c—and let your remittance follow by first mail.

It's my business not only to make you money, but also to protect you in the investments you make on my advice. I do it! Read my iron-clad guarantee:

On and after this date any Mining Stock sold through my office will carry with it a guarantee that should the purchaser desire to dispose of his holdings within one year from the date of purchase, I will sell the same for him at the highest market price. I can do this only because of the exceptionally high value of the securities I handle. It is my business to safeguard my patrons, protecting them against loss and making for them a big profit in as quick a time as conditions will permit.

Take my advice. Buy Arizona Copper-Gold to-day—now—at 30c. It's a safe "buy." You will never regret it. Mark my words—it will prove the best investment you ever made.

$40,000 POOL IS FORMED TO FIGHT STRIKE

Girl Garment Workers Say They Will Not Give in to Employers.

FIVE MORE FIRMS YIELD

That a $40,000 pool has been formed by thirty-four big garment manufacturers of the city to fight their striking employes to the end was the information given by the strikers' agents to the executive committee at Stillman Hall to-day.

According to the report, the manufacturers at a meeting at Clark's Hotel bound themselves to fight the strikers and furnished a bond of $500 each to clinch the resolution.

The firms in the pool employ 900 men and women.

Five More Firms Sign.

Five more of the small firms have signed the agreement and their employes have gone back. The executive committee expects that six other firms will sign to-day. Twelve hundred out of the 2,100 employes who struck have gone back to work.

The men of the strikers' committee are being assisted materially by the young women who are doing all in their power to help the cause. They are enduring the necessary hardships without a murmer. "It will not be the girls who will give in," they say.

Bessie Leventhal, one of the girl strike leaders, said to-day:

"No traitor will be found among the girls. We have all gone into this strike actuated by motives of loyalty to our union and we shall stay till the end.

"That we have all quit work at this time shows that we believe firmly in the justice of our cause, for this is the best season of the year and had we stayed at work we would have made much more money than we could make in ordinary months."

In Charge of Twenty Girls.

Miss Leventhal is a head finisher when she is at work and has charge of the work of twenty girls. Two of the other strike leaders among the girls are Ida Barack, who lives with Miss Leventhal at No. 71 Allen street, and Martha Epstein, who lives at No. 9 Genesee street.

Two girls and two men are stationed in front of each of the affected houses. They stay on picket duty on two-hour shifts.

2 MEN BLOWN OUT WINDOW

Two men were blown through a window by a gasolene explosion and a wedding will be minus ice cream on account of a fire to-day on the premises of Joseph H. Maloof, No. 15 Hudson street.

The fire was caused by an explosion of a gasolene engine used in the manufacture of ice cream in the basement. Th two men who were running the engin, both Armenians, were hired only yesteray. They were so frightened that they fled down the street, shrieking for help, although uninjured.

Up stairs half a dozen families made a hurried escape to the street. The fire was confined to the basement and a portion of the first floor. The damage is $500.

To Owners of Bad Breath—

Foul Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Eating or Drinking Stopped at Once With Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Trial Package To Prove It Sent Free.

Bilious breathers, onion eaters, indigestion victims, cabbage consumers, smokers, drinkers and those with gas on the stomach are in a class all by themselves, distinguished by a powerful bad breath.

They all breathe, and [illegible] they breathe they whiff out odor which makes those standing near turn their heads away in disgust. The pitiable part of it is that these victims do not realize what a sickening thing a bad, offensive breath is to others.

Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of gases and odors. It absorbs 100 times its own volume of gas.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will put a stop to your bad, offensive breath, and to your belchings, whatever the cause or source, because the charcoal quickly absorbs all noxious, unnatural odors and gases.

If you suffer from indigestion, and belch gas as a result, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will absorb all the gas and make your stop belching.

If on getting up in the morning you have such a bad, bilious breath, that you can almost smell it yourself, Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges will get rid of it for you quickly.

If you have been smoking or chewing, or have been eating onions or other odorous things, Stuart's Char-you have such a bad, bilious breath pure and sweet.

Charcoal is also the best laxative known. You can take a whole boxful and no harm will result. It is a wonderfully easy regulator.

And then, too, it filters your blood—every particle of poison and impurity in your blood is destroyed, and you begin to notice the difference in your face first thing—your clear complexion.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from pure willow charcoal, and just a little honey is put in to make them palatable, but not too sweet.

They will work wonders in your stomach, and make you feel fine and fresh. Your blood and breath will be purified. You will feel clean inside.

We want to prove all this to you, so just send for a free sample to-day. Then after you get it and use it, you will like them so well that you will go to your druggist and get a 25c box of these Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges.

Send us your name and address to-day and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 93 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

GIRL STRIKERS WILL MAKE EVERY SACRIFICE TO WIN

STATE'S LABOR HOSTS DENOUNCE RECESS JOB

Strong Protest Against the Republican Plot to Kill Workingman's Bills.

Organized labor in every section of the State, thoroughly aroused over the job of the Republican party bosses to kill all labor legislation at this session of the Legislature, is vigorously protesting against the order for a recess committee and insisting on a square deal.

When it became known that the Senate had refused to reconsider the vote whereby labor bills were to be sidetracked, and the fact was announced that the order had been sent to the House just before adjournment yesterday afternoon, union after union called special meetings to voice their displeasure at the unfair and unseemly manner in which the wishes of organized labor had been treated.

A. F. of L. Leaders Speak Out.

The Legislative Committee of the State branch of the Federation of Labor met last night and sent an official communication to every one of the 240 members of the House, calling upon them to exercise justice, give fair play to the desires of the Federation and vote to defeat the order for a recess committee.

The Brockton Central Labor Union emphasizes the demand for fair play. The Textile Council of Fall River and New Bedford unions take up the cry, and they represent many thousand toilers.

The appeal of the State Federation is as follows:

"To the Members of the Great and General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

"Justice—Gentlemen: The Senate passed an order calling for a recess committee on labor matters Tuesday, March 26, 1907; refused consideration at the request of organized labor, Wednesday, March 27, 1907.

Labor Does Not Want It.

"Organized labor of this State ask of you fair play.

"Do not force this recess committee on organized labor, as they do not want it.

"If you believe in fair play, with justice to all, defeat that order, as organized labor never asked for a recess committee.

"Organized labor in this State is a unit against the recess committee.

"We ask of you in the interest of all the people interested in the labor bills to defeat the order for a recess committee.

"Trusting our request will be granted, we are, respectfully yours.

"EDWARD COHEN, President.
"D. D. DRISCOLL, Secretary.
"E. F. WARD.
"Legislative Committee Massachusetts State Branch, A. F. of L."

BROCKTON CENTRAL UNION DECLARES IT 'COWARDLY EVASION'

BROCKTON, March 28.—The Brockton Central Labor Union, composed of sixty unions, unanimously adopted resolutions last night against the appointment of a recess committee to consider labor measures.

The resolutions are as follows:

"Resolved, by the Central Labor Union of Brockton, that we denounce the scheme of a recess committee for the consideration of legislation asked for, in the name of the common welfare of organized labor, because.

"1. The grievances for which legislative remedy is sought are so well understood by the dominant party in the Legislature that postponement is a welcome cloak for its cowardly evasion of its duties; because.

"2. The subject matter has once before been referred to such a committee without results; because

"3. It creates salaried places for party favorites, who draw money from a people's treasury while obeying the influence of the ring that operated them.

"Resolved, That we denounce the party trickery which awarded only one short hours in which labor could present its grievances before the Judiciary Committee, while it gave days and evenings to the shoe machinery bill.

"Our case concerns men; the other concerns cash.

"Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to use our utmost efforts to unite our forces in the election districts and defeat the men who either have not the ability or else the inclination to aid us in securing our rights under the Constitution, which we are now denied in the equity courts, viz:

"1. To be governed only by laws duly enacted by the Legislature.
"2. Free speech.
"3. Free press."

WEAVERS' UNION OF NEW BEDFORD WANTS LEGISLATORS TO ACT

NEW BEDFORD, March 28.—At a special meeting of the executive committee of the Weavers' Union held at its headquarters last night the committee went on record in opposition to the submission of any labor measures to a recess committee. It was resolved to do all in the power of the union to insist upon the labor measures being acted upon at this session of the Legislature. The committee commended the attitude of the BOSTON AMERICAN in its efforts in behalf of organized labor.

President William Holland of the Weavers' Union, which has a paid-up membership of 1,500, said:

"We want every member of the Legislature to go on record this year in regard to labor questions. Those who vote against labor measures will receive our attention next Fall."

Matthew Hart, president of the Textile Union, said:

"We believe a recess committee to be nothing but a junket. Organized labor is opposed to any such scheme and demands its rights. I am telegraphing to all the Representatives and Senators in the State Legislature, telling them of our stand in this matter."

BOSTON ROOFERS GO ON RECORD FOR PROMPT ACTION

One of the latest Boston labor organizations to go on record as opposed to the appointment of a recess committee is Roofers' Protective Union No. 17. The union at its meeting at No. 18 Kneeland street passed a vote of censure for labor representatives who make overtures to outside committees.

FALL RIVER UNIONS CONDEMN THE PLAN TO KILL LABOR BILLS

FALL RIVER, March 27.—The plan to kill labor legislation by submitting bills now before the Legislature to a Summer recess committee was vigorously condemned last night at meetings of the weavers, carders and spinners' unions' executive committees.

It is predicted that the Textile Council will also act.

PUTS LAWYER UNDER ARREST IN COURTROOM

Judge Fessenden in the Superior Court ordered the arrest of Lawyer William P. Hale, on trial for disbarment proceedings, late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hale was released from the custody of the court officer after he divulged certain information, the withholding of which led to his arrest.

The disbarment charges against Wm. Hale are based on alleged professional misconduct in charge of the divorce suit of Mrs. Gertrude S. Brackett against her husband, Arthur L. Brackett. His former client, Mrs. Brackett, now charges that he fraudulently obtained her signature to assignments, and that he charged her a fee of $4,100, which she considers excessive. The proceedings continue to-day.

REPORT BILL AGAINST SHOE MACHINE TRUST

The Joint Judiciary Committee of the Legislature voted, 11 to 5, late yesterday, to report an anti-shoe machinery trust bill. The bill will probably make its appearance to-day in the Senate.

This was the line-up, after an all-day battle:

For an anti-trust bill: Senators Taft of Worcester, Jenney of Hyde Park, Riley of Woburn and Vahey of Watertown, and Representatives Higgins of Somerville, Terry of Gloucester, Wier of Lowell, Hobson of Palmer, Drysdale of North Adams, Gauthier of New Bedford and O'Connell of Fitchburg—11.

Against the bill: Senator Donovan of Lawrence and Representatives Turtle of Pittsfield, Bishop of Newton, Elmore of Cambridge and Quinn of Boston—4.

The bill prohibits the sale or lease of machinery on bills of sale or leases which stipulate that the buyer or lessee shall not buy or lease the machinery of any other dealer than the seller or lessor. While the United Shoe Machinery Company is not named, it has not been disputed that the shoe machinery trust is the only target.

"Independent" manufacturers and small rivals of the Big Boston-Beverly concern complained that its form of leases had almost destroyed competition.

A similar bill was passed by the House of last year and put to death by that Senate, which also suffocated the overtime bill, limiting the hours of employment of women and children in textile factories. The killing of the shoe machinery bill a year ago was a campaign issue in some senatorial districts.

SHIP CRASHES INTO LIGHTER IN DENSE FOG

The steamer City of Gloucester collided with the Bradley Fertilizer Company's lighter L. B. Curtis in a dense fog off South Boston flats at 6:30 o'clock this morning. The Gloucester had a large hole torn in the starboard paddle box. There were no passengers on board, and the Gloucester proceeded to her dock immediately after backing away from the lighter.

The Curtis, accompanied by another lighter, the Rogers, was in tow of a tug and on its way down the harbor to one of the fertilizing company's islands. The collision came without warning, owing to one of the heaviest fogs that has enveloped the harbor for a long time.

The City of Gloucester was Boston bound, in command of Captain Godfrey. The lighter Curtis was not injured, so far as is known.

MUZZLING DOGS IS CRUEL, SAYS MRS. SEAGRAVE

Charging that Dr. Austin J. Peters, chief of the Cattle Bureau of the State Board of Agriculture, has needlessly frightened the public by ordering all dogs in the State muzzled when there was not a case of rabies proved, and that tuberculous meat is sold all over the Commonwealth, Mrs. E. H. Seagrave of Wakefield is leading a fight by the Ladies' Kennel Club against the reappointment of Dr. Peters by Governor Guild.

The club of which Mrs. Seagrave is president has among its members scores of wealthy and influential society leaders. Many of these women were present at the hearing on dog laws at the State House on March 5, and their hisses drowned Dr. Peters's reply to the question: "Are you a friend of the dog?"

Mrs. Seagrave makes the folloging statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN:

By Mrs. E. H. Seagrave.

President of Ladies' Kennel Club of Massachusetts.

We had only a hundred persons working for a hearing when we started with the petition, but now we have thousands of people aiding us. We want a public hearing, so that Dr. Peters will have an opportunity of telling why he deemed it necessary to be so cruel as to order that all dogs should be muzzled. We should also like very much to hear how muzzling can prevent rabies.

We believe that Dr. Peters caused unnecessary fright during the recent mad-dog scares. There is no feeling of bitterness against him. We should like very much to know why the State should pay a man a large salary for frightening the citizens. We should also like to hear why tuberculous meat is permitted to be sold in the markets of the State.

I do not believe that we have had one single case of rabies in this State as yet. A prominent doctor who has been studying canine diseases for many years says that he has yet to discover a case of rabies. When a dog snaps or has a slight attack of indigestion it is called rabies.

To muzzle a dog is a great cruelty. There has not been a muzzle invented that does not injure the dog. Either the dog's brain is pressed by the strap over the skull or his mouth is made sore by the bit.

We are not the only persons who are not satisfied with the actions of Dr. Peters. He has caused a great deal of unnecessary trouble for the cattlemen of the State in a great many ways. We have a great many cattle raisers, doctors and veterinaries working with us.

We all believe that Dr. Peters will not be reappointed by Governor Guild after we tell our story at the State House.

ARMY ORDER BARS NEGROES AS RECRUITS

WASHINGTON, March 28.—No more negroes are to be accepted for service in the United States Army, according to instructions sent out to various recruiting stations from the War Department.

The first inkling of this order that reached the public was through the recruiting office at Houston, Texas, where this order was received yesterday.

Although the announcement has thus far had but little time to travel, already there are hundreds of people throughout the country, who, judging from queries received here concerning it, are both interested and somewhat excited over the matter. Simultaneously there came another announcement to the effect that all negro troops in the United States were to be dispatched forthwith to the Philippines.

YERKES BONDS ARE GIVEN TO MISS GRIGSBY

NEW YORK, March 28.—The suit filed by Emilie Grigsby against the Central Trust Company to gain possession of 47,000 shares of promotion bonds of the London Underground Railroad has been settled.

Miss Grigsby has been given possession of the securities, which were placed with the Central Trust Company in trust for her by the late Charles T. Yerkes several years ago.

The bonds were deposited in blank in pursuance of a plan Mr. Yerkes had formulated to provide for the young woman before his death. He gave her the magnificent mansion, crowded with art treasures, at No. 660 Madison avenue, which is now closed and boarded up, and a sufficiency of bonds and money to make her independent for life.

The whereabouts of Miss Grigsby is a mystery. She is supposed to be abroad.

It Takes Tact and Judgment to Be Happy, Though Engaged

Young Men Are More Apt to Offend by Thoughtlessness Than by Intention to Say the Wrong Thing

A GREAT number of young men in love treat their sweethearts most unfairly. Not, of course, with any intention of doing so, but either because they lack consideration or are entirely unable to look at things from a woman's point of view.

Romeo has certain free times, when the desk no longer chains him and when the duties of his office or profession allow him a little liberty.

With that kind of logic which is as absurd as it is crude, he decides that Juliet ought to be able to spend with him whatever portions of those times he selects, and if she does not do so he begins to feel aggrieved and, possibly, searches round for some imaginary rival.

Thoughtless Romeo

Such a young man is unreasonable. He [illegible] himself, in making appointments, that he [illegible] bear in mind the duties of [illegible] labor, and he ought to allow the [illegible] latitude to his fiancee.

Even if not following any regular daily vocation, Juliet may have duties at home which cannot be easily put aside at a moment's notice.

Another way in which a young man is sometimes unfair to his fiancee is in the manner in which he makes her very engagement to him a reason for dissension and unhappiness in her home.

This is more often due to thoughtlessness than to wrong intention.

A thoughtless remark, possibly intended as a compliment, may have a very hurtful effect upon the peace of the family, and especially put the recipient of the compliment in a very awkward and painful position.

"I have got the pick of the whole family," said a young man the other day. "Edith is far prettier and nicer than all the other sisters!"

Dangerous Compliments

The remark was intended to please Edith, but somehow, when it reached other ears it seemed to have equally the effect of displeasing them.

And Edith's position in the house was not made more happy.

Some time ago a girl who had been engaged for some months, and who was not expecting to be married for a year or two, as her lover was not in a sufficiently good position, said to her fiance:

"I am very sorry, but I cannot go on like this. I want to break the engagement."

The young man was surprised, but pleaded with her. He was greatly in love with her, and the thought of losing her was very depressing to him.

"Was there no alternative?" he asked.

Hard pressed, the girl admitted that there was. She was willing, if he would not break the engagement, to marry him at once. It must be one way or the other. Then she gave her reasons.

His foolish though well-meant comparison of herself with her sisters had made her home-life so unbearable that she would no longer endure it as his fiancee.

"I have to choose between my people and you," she said. "It is quite clear, after what has occurred, I cannot have both. I know you meant kindly, but you do not know how these things work out in a house. You want to wait till you can bring me to a comfortable home, equal to the one I come from; but no comfort would make up to me for what I should suffer in the meantime. I must either break off the engagement forever or you shall marry me at once."

In this case the cause of the trouble had been a question which the thoughtless young man had addressed to his prospective mother-in-law.

A Foolish Question

"How is it, Mrs. Blank," he said, "that one of your daughters should be so much prettier and nicer than all the rest put together?"

The young man who is engaged should remember that the period of engagement may be one full of minor worries and difficulties to his fiancee.

He should, in consequence, be exceedingly careful to avoid any of those foolish and thoughtless actions which may increase her difficulties, and especially he should remember that she has duties and obligations in the house to which she belongs.

GAMES FOR EVENING PARTIES

SUCH a charming diversion upon the ordinary buffet tea served in the dining room was instituted by a young hostess at her bridge party the other afternoon.

Bridge was played in the drawing room, which was duly provided with small tables for the game. Each table was covered with a dainty little "cloth" of Japanese crepe paper, bought for a few cents a dozen, and a tea equipage for four persons, including a plate of bread and butter and one of cakes.

As the guests arrived they were conducted to the tables, and before them were placed pots of freshly-made tea and a plate of hot cakes, in addition to the other provisions. When tea was over the tables were quickly cleared and bridge immediately begun.

Musical Parties

Musical parties are very popular again, and are a distinct resource at this season of the year both as an afternoon festivity or after dinner when guests are invited to come around, and coffee is served with light refreshments later in the evening.

Clever amateurs sing, play solo and duet piano-forte pieces, the fiddle, and the 'cello.

There are not wanting signs that the harp will once more become a favorite instrument among those whose grace of form and pretty hands and arms it so elegantly displays.

If you have never played "Advertisements," try it at your next party. It takes all stiffness away and causes no end of chattering. Ask each guest to bring a well-known advertisement picture, cutting out beforehand all trace of the name of the thing advertised and also of the maker.

Paste each picture on a sheet of white paper and number each. Pin them on the walls of the room, and give each guest a sheet of paper and a pencil, the papers bearing numbers corresponding with the pictures.

Against each number the guest must fill in the name of the article the picture similarly numbered is used to advertise—prizes to be given to the two guessing the most, and a booby prize for the one with the least correct answers.

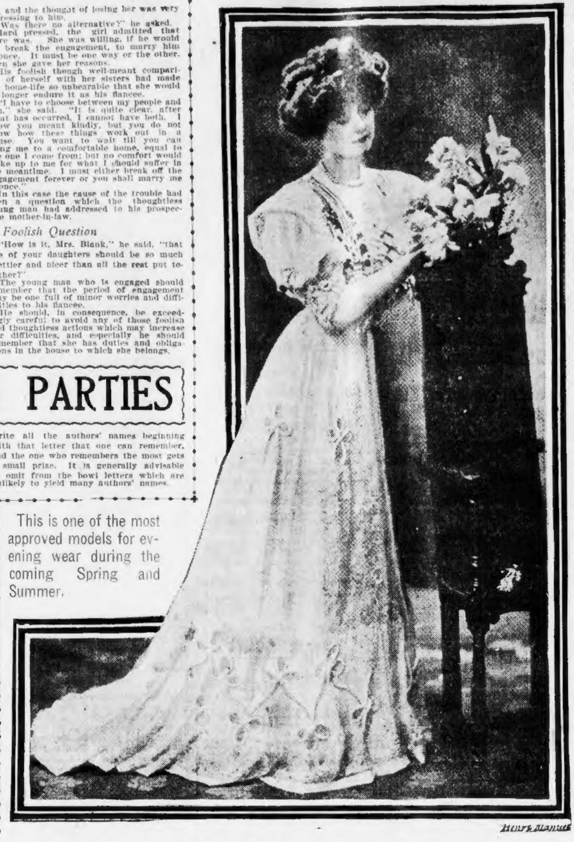
"Authors"

The hostess provides her guests with pencils and slips of paper, then places a bowl containing all the letters of the alphabet on a table and draws one letter. "Ready!" she cries, and then calls the name of the letter drawn.

Five minutes are allowed in which to write all the authors' names beginning with that letter that one can remember, and the one who remembers the most gets a small prize. It is generally advisable to omit from the bowl letters which are unlikely to yield many authors' names.

LACE EVENING GOWN FROM PARIS DESIGN

This is one of the most approved models for evening wear during the coming Spring and Summer.



FOR a handsome reception gown, this model made for a young matron by a Boylston street modiste has many admirable points which may be copied to advantage in gowns of chiffon or any of the soft, draping materials.

It is of Irish lace, which is decidedly in favor, combined with lace motifs and silver cord.

The long full skirt has a deep band of the lace set about the knees, the cord being used in trefoil designs each side.

The bodice, which is of the lace and crepe, has bretelles of deep mauve panne velvet, elaborately embroidered in silver.

Pale gray, pink, or corn-colored crepe would be equally effective, and the new filet lace with Irish or Cluny motifs might be used instead of the Irish lace.

Where Old Maids and Bachelors Are Not Much in Favor

By Beatrice Fairfax

IN Fort Dodge, Ia., you must marry or pay the piper, in other words the City Council. They have no use for old maids and old bachelors in Fort Dodge. Incidentally they evidently consider a woman marriageable until she is forty-five. All bachelors and spinsters between the ages of twenty-five and forty-five are requested to marry or pay a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100, according to the "criminal negligence of the person or persons unmarried."

The bachelors, being set in their ways, will probably pay the fine.

But what will the spinsters do. Pay or "explanation" themselves?

A woman may not have the money to pay, but will she say, "Please, sir, I am a spinster because nobody ever asked me to be anything else?" I fancy not.

There are few women, however, who go through life without a chance to marry. The right man may not ask them, or perhaps they don't know their own minds, or the man of their choice has proved false. There are dozens of reasons why women don't marry.

Who Can Explain?

AND as for the men, well, who can pretend to probe the reasons for a man preferring a forlorn old bachelorhood to a happy home.

First of all, perhaps, he hates to give up his liberty. Second, he is selfish and hates to give up half of his income and assume the responsibility of a wife and family.

Then, of course, there are some men who are obliged to support their parents or sisters, and for them marriage is almost out of the question.

The authorities at Fort Dodge may help along some halting courtships, but I very much doubt if they will actually bring about any marriages.

Anyway, the man who only marries because he does not want to pay a $10 or $100 fine would not be much of a prize in the husband line.

Old maids are not nearly as forlorn as old bachelors. A woman can turn a hall bedroom into a really cosey little nest. She carries enough photographs and knick-knacks about with her to make a home wherever she goes.

The Ways of Men

BUT a man can turn an otherwise luxurious room into a perfect Sahara of loneliness.

Boots under the bed, coats and trousers over the backs of chairs. Ashes everywhere, letters and papers all over the place, blinds pulled as high as they will go (men have an insane love of glaring light), desolation and untidiness everywhere. And that's what he calls the freedom and comfort of bachelordom.

When he is young it is not so bad, but when he is old it's pretty forlorn.

He gets his dinner at a different place every night, wanders about to the theatre, smokes and drinks more than is good for him and wastes his money.

His benedict brother may not have so much liberty, but he has a wife who thinks him quite wonderful, a cosey home and perhaps a baby who may grow up to be the President of the United States.

I hope the men of the East will not be required to pay a fine in order to get them to marry.

There are dozens of lovely, sensible girls, who will make splendid wives. Hunt one up, Mr. Bachelor, and get married without delay. You will be a far more useful member of society married than single.

CREAMED WHITEFISH

BOIL the fish fifteen or twenty minutes, and take out bones. Season with pepper, salt and a few drops of lemon juice. To each pint of this add sauce made from four tablespoons of butter, two of flour, a speck of cayenne pepper, and a pint of rich milk in which a little piece of onion has been boiled. Mix sauce with the fish gently, taking care the flakes are not broken. Place in a baking dish, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake from twenty to thirty minutes in a hot oven.

BROWN BREAD

TWO cups of yellow cornmeal, one cup rye meal, one cup flour, two cups milk, one cup molasses, one-half teaspoon of salt, three teaspoons of baking powder. Mix all together and pour into brown bread tin and steam three and one-half hours.

MRS. W. L. KINSMAN,
No. 2 Carver street, Somerville.

DELMONICO PEA SOUP

TAKE one pint split peas, add what water is needed and a bone of a smoked shoulder or a piece of pork, and when most done put in two bay leaves, two or three whole cloves and alspice. When done strain and serve with crackers.

POTATO PANCAKES.

Grate enough potatoes to fill a quart bowl, add one egg and a little salt, mix cup of flour, beat all together and cook as griddle cakes.

MRS. E. MAYER.
No. 127 Centennial avenue, Revere.

ORANGE MARMALADE

ONE dozen oranges, three lemons, two and one-half quarts cold water and ten cups of sugar. Wash the fruit and remove the orange and lemon rind in as thin pieces as possible and cut into thin strips. Pare the white skin from the oranges and lemons and do not use it. Cut the lemons and oranges into thin slices; remove seeds and thick white centre. Put skins and fruit in a jar with two and one-half quarts of cold water. Allow them to stand twenty-four hours. Put in a preserving kettle and boil gently three hours. Add the sugar and boil forty-five minutes; place in glasses, cool and cover. Caution: If the fruit burns on bottom of kettle remove at once from the heat; empty and wash kettle before proceeding.

How Artificial Flowers Are Made

NOWADAYS one hears that the ranks of all employments and professions, with few exceptions, are filled by men and women alike. It is, therefore, surprising and agreeable news to hear of one occupation into which women have entered where there is no competition with men.

On the other hand, it is lamentable to think that artificial flower making, which is not very attractive as an employment, but can be turned to profitable account, according to the artistic skill of the worker, should not be more universally adopted as an employment for girls.

A French girl learns to make rose petals, rose buds or rose leaves only, as the case may be. In consequence, she becomes a skilled worker in that particular branch, and the French artificial rose is therefore perfection.

If she makes the poppy or any other flower, having learnt to work individually, she is equally successful.

But an American worker is expected to make any flower, and nothing is learned thoroughly well.

In consequence, her roses or poppies viewed from a distance either present the appearance of shuttlecocks or disused dusters, and do not have a semblance to the natural flowers.

The fashion of petal boas has given increased employment in the making of black flowers, and much excellent work can be done by making chiffon flowers and other trimmings for ball dresses, as there is an increasing demand of this kind.

During slack seasons a girl's time can be fully employed in making up quills artistically for hat trimmings when flowers are not required. She can also find ample employment in other decorative work which will enable her to become more artistic and skilful when she is busy again with flower making.

There is always a steady demand for artificial palms for decorations, and the "carnations" always seen in chemists' shops supply other employment in artificial flower making.

Until recently all the coloring of flower petals had to be done with the brush, but since the invention of the "aerograph," most of the coloring is done by this ingenious instrument, and is much more delicate and effective on account of being able to reproduce the different gradations of coloring instead of only a flat surface.

The amount of remuneration varies considerably, according to the deftness and artistic skill of the worker.

CHAPTER LXXIII.

Aid from Basil

FROM the moment that half-crazed Sylvia Thurston uttered her oath to track to justice the man who slew her brother, Basil Thurston left no stone unturned to find the missing man. He joined hands with Frank Bracebridge in the search.

Back of his energy was the renewal of a life-long hope crushed by Sylvia's marriage to Mueller.

He knew how idolatrous was the love Sylvia had cherished for her murdered brother. He had good cause to know it, for because of it and Sylvia's acceptance of Raymond's prejudice against him he had lost love which he felt sure she had once given him.

He believed also that Sylvia now had but one thought—revenge. He felt that the one who aided her in her quest would stand well in her favor.

Further than that he did not dare go, even in his thoughts, for thief and murderer as Mueller had proved himself to be, he was still Sylvia's husband.

But his love for Sylvia was so great, his hatred for the man who had ruined her life so strong, that he flung everything else to the winds to aid Bracebridge in his search for Mueller.

In Desperate Straits

By tacit consent both men avoided seeking the aid of the police. Detectives Loftus and Bittinger returned to New York with full descriptions of Mueller, Nurse Mason and the baby, and the usual police descriptions were printed and sent broadcast throughout the land.

But Frank and Basil pursued their investigations independent of the police. Each had his own reason for hating the sleek, devilish foreigner; each wished to have the exquisite pleasure of personally bringing the man to justice.

Frank had an especial reason for wishing to get Mueller in his power before the authorities took him in hand. He had enlisted the aid of Loftus and Bittinger because police aid was necessary to prove Reginald innocent of the murder of his wife, but that being accomplished Frank wished more than anything else in the world to obtain from Mueller the fourth of the map and the missing diamond which the foreigner had in his possession.

He was also uneasy about the airship Mueller had stolen and the safety of the beautiful Madame Slavinsky.

He knew that Mueller now was in such desperate straits that with his almost supernatural cunning he would find means of equipping the airship for a long journey, and that he would stop at nothing to secure the map and diamonds which he believed to be in the possession of Frank and Vera Slavinsky.

"He will come to me sooner or later," murmured Frank, "to attempt to steal those things, and then——"

His fists clenched, and there was a look upon his face that boded ill to Carl Mueller if he should ever come within reach again.

Frank was sorely troubled at this time about Reginald. Baker's long, hard work had been rewarded with the quashing of the indictment against Reginald and the issuing of warrants for Dr. Schmidt, alias Carl Mueller.

Frank had immediately cabled Reginald to come home, adding in cipher, "Do not forget the packet."

Reginald, who during his period of enforced seclusion had been almost a model youth, seemed to lose all sense of decency and gratitude with the news that announced his freedom to resume his own name.

A Message

He returned an evasive answer to Frank concerning the package and plunged into wild excesses of living.

Frank honored all his drafts, for fear that if the boy was short of money he might open the packet and pawn the diamonds.

He did not dare go over to France to see Reginald, for he was spending every spare moment upon the wreck of the first airship he had built. He knew that there might arise a contingency when he would be forced to pursue Mueller if the foreigner should get the second airship in readiness for a long voyage, and he meant to take no chances.

Basil and Sylvia, accompanied by Basil's sister Rose, had gone to Florida in the hope that the change of air would benefit Sylvia, who still clung to her mad notion of revenge for her brother's death.

She would sit and gloat over the police circulars by the hour, and had wrung from Basil a promise that the moment there was news of Carl Mueller she should be permitted to aid in tracking him down.

Basil was pursuing his investigations on a line somewhat different from Frank's. Leaving Sylvia in the care of Rose, he made a trip to Paris. Frank, who knew he was going, asked him to look up Reginald, and advise him as to what he was doing.

Basil went to Paris, but could not find Reginald. Before he could advise Frank of the fact his investigations called him back to New York. There he found Reginald, who had been in New York for some time, sending his drafts to Frank through friends in Paris, to mislead his cousin as to his whereabouts. What Basil found in New York caused him to send Frank the following message at his house on the Sound:

> Better come at once if possible. Reginald here at Hotel Jerome in hands of human vultures. Needs looking after badly. Compelled to go to Russia immediately. May have news later.

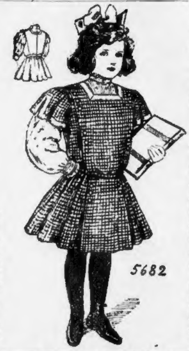
The Boston American Pattern

An Attractive Frock —FOR THE— Little Girl



No. 5,682—This little dress of white mohair is very girlish and charming. It is also very practical, as it admits of several variations. The long sleeve may be omitted, and the neck cut out, thus making a dainty little frock to be worn with different guimpes. The waist is bloused slightly all around and the deep tucks over the shoulders give grace to the childish figure. The trimmings consist of scarlet braid and buttons, which add much to the smartness of the mode. Challis, albatross, cashmere, linen and gingham are all adapted to the design. For a child of eight years three yards of material, thirty-six inches wide will be required.

No. 5,682—Sizes for 8, 9, 10 and 12 years.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents and the size, name and address to the BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

The Boston American Spring and Summer Catalogue for 1907 Is Now Ready

THIS catalogue contains between 400 and 500 of the very latest designs for ladies', misses' and children's garments, also illustrated lessons on the making of fine lingerie and baby clothes, including the various embroidery stitches now in use and the fancy stitches employed in the finishing of hand-made garments. To obtain this book send 10 cents in money or stamps to the BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

FILENE'S have special sales every Friday, closing out styles that are not to be renewed. Among the special sales to-morrow are $10 Scotch mixture coats for $3.75, $1.89 nearsilk petticoats for 98 cents, and also an exceptional value in Roman striped petticoats, regularly $10, for $7.50, and $2.25 to $3 long kid gloves for 75 cents.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO., in order to anticipate the usual Spring rush, offer special inducements to those who place their orders for furniture slip covers at once. For to-morrow only they offer a set of slip covers made from pure Belgian linen, allowing 15 yards of material, cut and fitted to your furniture, complete for $11.59. The workmanship is guaranteed to be the best, and the material will stand repeated laundering. For this small sum you can save your parlor furniture from the dust and hard wear of the coming summer.

JORDAN MARSH CO., in their basement, offer a bargain no wide-awake housekeeper can afford to ignore. For to-morrow and Saturday only they will sell their $1—standard make—food-chopper for 69 cents. Its construction is such that it will cut (not mash) into clean cubes everything that was formerly chopped in the old-fashioned chopping bowl.

GILCHRIST COMPANY offers for Friday only a splendid lot of Japanese batiste waists, open back, long or short sleeves, front yoke of fine tucks and square embroidered medallions and lace insertion, actually worth $2, for only $1.19.

SOMMER CO. offer taffeta La Reine silk petticoats, the silk in which retails for $1 per yard. At seven yards to skirt and $1 for making, this skirt would cost $8. For a limited time they will be sold at $5; none to dealers, and only one to a customer.

MEYER JONASSON CO. will sell 20 high-grade silk waists, in handsome styles of plaids, Roman stripes and brown, all perfect and reduced from $7.50 and $6.90 to $2.95 for to-morrow. These waists are made of extra fine quality of taffeta silk, and the woman who is there early enough to secure one will have on hand a waist suitable for a great variety of occasions.

HENRY SIEGEL CO. will have a rousing rug bargain, offering a lot of perfect reproductions of Persian rugs in varied and beautiful designs and soft, restful colorings, ranging in values from $24 to $28, and at times $32, all reduced to $16.80, for to-morrow only. Get in before the crowds to make your selection.

BUTLER'S, among their Friday specials, will have women's lace ankle lisle hose, for 12½ cents, the regular 25-cent values; also the 50-cent new style wide band back combs, at 19 cents, and 29-cent P. K. wash belts, solid buckle, for 12½ cents.

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. will make a special of men's balbriggan shirts and drawers. The shirts have short and long sleeves. These are 50-cent values, but subject to very slight imperfections, and to-morrow they will be cleared out at 37½ cents per garment.

E. R. KNIGHTS will have on special sale all-silk petticoats, with silk underflounces, assorted colors (no black ones). These are reduced from $3.95 to $1.95 for to-morrow only.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont Temple store offers Friday morning 150 white lawn waists, three rows of wide Hamburg embroidery down front, lace trimmed collar and cuff, button back, sizes 34 to 44, at only 79 cents; would be cheap at $1; special for Friday only.

DODGE-SPEAR CO. have a bargain in ladies' gloves. All the new spring shades, including white, regular $1.50 gloves, will be sold to-morrow for 79 cents.

R. H. WHITE are offering ladies' strap back, envelope, leather purses, that were first reduced from $1 to 59 cents, and are now 25 cents. The reason for this reduction is that the purses have been subjected to more or less handling on the counters.

Pimples and Blackheads.

In business, or in society, a man or woman finds a PIMPLY FACE to be a bar to success. In business the best positions go to the men of good facial appearance, and in society the woman with a pimply face finds her circle of friends small indeed.

CHARGE PLOT TO DEFRAUD TROLLEY LINE

WORCESTER, March 28.—Through the work of Attorney Guy Murchie of Boston, who represented the Boston & Worcester Street Railway in a suit brought by James J. Backus for alleged injuries and which terminated yesterday by the arrest of the plaintiff, it is charged a plot to defraud electric car lines has been discovered.

Backus and companions, the court was told by Attorney Murchie, have attempted to recover money from railroads and insurance companies by means of "fake" injuries. The attorney told the court that Backus had sued insurance companies.

On the stand Backus appeared like a man in the prime of life.

"Remove that wig," ordered the court; and instead of a vigorous man there appeared an old man with snow-white hair, seemingly about sixty years old. More records were read, and Judge Gaskill ordered a verdict for the defendant and ordered the arrest of the plaintiff.

Suing jointly with Backus was Mrs. Fairbanks, who fainted in court when the revelations were made.

IF YOU ARE DEAF

If you are deaf or your hearing is in any way impaired, no matter what may have produced the trouble, you owe it to yourself to call upon Mr. Geo. P. Way, the inventor of the Way Ear Drum, who is staying at the Quincy House. Mr. Way, whose home office is in the Majestic Building, Detroit, Mich., is making a tour of the country in order to meet personally those who are deaf.

Mr. Way, formerly a mechanical engineer by profession, was deaf himself for twenty-five years, and it was to relieve his own trouble that he devoted his mechanical skill and years of special study of the ear, to solving the problem of an artificial aid to hearing. His theory that the human ear is only a delicate piece of mechanism has been proven true, and it is interesting to see Mr. Way remove from his ears the little devices, without which he is as badly off as those who daily consult him for defective hearing. The success of the Way Ear Drum in relieving deafness is unquestioned. Coupled with the absolute, correct scientific principle in design, the Way Ear Drums appeal strongly from the fact that they are invisible, are painless, cannot collapse in the ear, are easily placed and removed, and best of all, restore hearing. All who are deaf should visit the inventor while he is in Boston.

Mr. Way, while an expert himself in the knowledge of the ear and the various conditions which produce impaired hearing and deafness, by reason of his own personal experience in treating himself successfully, yet gives added assurance of his earnestness to help all those who call upon him in the fact that he is accompanied during his visit to Boston by Dr. F. M. Way of Detroit, one of the eminent and successful specialists in the treatment of the ear, located in that city. Those who call upon Mr. Way will thus have the benefit of a thorough professional examination and counsel, as well as the great advantage of meeting one who has gone through the deep waters of personal suffering, who was deaf himself and by his own efforts brought back his hearing. So do not hesitate to call upon Mr. Way if your hearing is defective. Appointments can be made by telephone with Mr. Way by those who desire private consultation.

Mr. Way is at the Quincy House for a few days. All who are deaf should be sure to call on him. It will cost nothing to learn whether he can help you or not.

Take the elevator and the attendant will show you to Mr. Way's parlors.

United States and Canadian patents have been granted on Mr. Way's valuable invention.

"SO IT is you, Jim Randolph, is it. What brings you here?"

His voice was hoarse, but it had a metallic ring that went to my marrow. Bob Brownley in all the years of our friendship had never spoken to me except in kind and loving regard.

I looked at him, stunned. I must have shown how hurt I was. But if he saw it he gave no sign.

His eyes, looking straight into mine, changed no more than if he had been addressing his deadliest enemy.

Again his voice rang out:

"What brings you here? Do you come to plead again for that dastard Reinhart after the warning I gave you?"

I clenched both hands until I felt the nails cut the flesh of my palms. I loved Bob Brownley.

I would have done anything to make him happy, would willingly have sacrificed my own life to protect him from himself or others, but this madman, this wild brute, was no more Bob Brownley as I had known him than the howling northeast gale of December is the gentle, welcome zephyr of August; and I felt a resentment at his brutal speech that I could hardly suppress.

With a mighty effort I crushed it back, trying to think of nothing but his awful misery and the Bob of our college days.

I said in a firm voice:

"Bob, is this the way to talk to me in your own office?"

At any time before, my words and tone would have touched his all-generous Southern chivalry, but now he said harshly:

"To hell with sentiment. What——"

He did not take his eyes from mine, but they told me that he was listening to a voice in the receiver.

Only for a second; then he let loose a wild laugh, which must have penetrated to the outer office.

His Answer

"Eighty and coming like a Spring freshet," he said into the mouthpiece, "and the boys want to know if I won't let up now that Reinhart is down? Go back and smother them with all they will take down to 60. That's my answer.

"Tell them if Reinhart had ten more wives and daughters and they were all killed, I'd rend his bastard trust to help him dull his sorrow.

"Give the word at every pole that I will have Reinhart where he will curse his luck that he was not in the automobile with the rest of his tribe——

"To hell with sentiment!"

He was speaking to me again.

"What do you want? If you are here to beg for Reinhart and his pack of yellow curs, you've got your answer.

"I wouldn't let up on that fiendish hyena, not if his wife and daughter and all the dead wives and daughters of every 'System' man came back in their grave clothes and begged. I wouldn't let up a share."

I gasped in horror.

"When did those robbers of men and despoilers of women and children ever let up because of death? When were they ever known to wait even till the corpse stiffened to pluck out the hearts of the victims?

"It is my turn now, and if I let up a hair may I, yes, and Beulah, too, be damned, eternally damned."

I could not stand it. If I stayed, I, too, should become mad.

I reached for the doorknob, but before I could swing the door open Bob was upon me like a wolf.

He grasped me by the shoulders and with the strength of a madman hurled me half across the room. I sank into a chair.

"No, you don't, Jim Randolph; no, you don't.

"You came here for something and, by heaven, you will tell me what it is.

"You know me; you are the only human being who does.

"You know what I was; you see what I am.

"You know what they did to me to make me what I am.

"You know, Jim Randolph, you know whether I deserved it.

"You know whether in all my life up to the day those dollar-frenzied hounds tore my soul, I had done any man, woman or child a wrong.

"You know whether I had, and now you are going to sneak off and leave me as though I were a cur dog of the Reinhart-'Standard Oil' breed gone mad!"

He was standing over me, a terrible, yet a magnificent figure. As he hurled these words at me I was sure he had really lost his mind; that I was in the presence of a man truly mad.

But only for an instant; then my horror, my anger turned to a great, crushing, all-consuming agony of pity for Bob, and I dropped my head on my hands and wept. It is hard to admit it, but it is true—I wept uncontrollably.

In an instant the room was quiet except for the sound of my own awful grief. I heard it, was ashamed of it, but I could not stop. The telephone rang again and again, wildly, shrilly, but there was no answer.

The stillness became so oppressive that even my own sobs quieted. I gasped as the lump in my throat choked me, then I slowly raised my eyes.

Bob's towering figure was in front of me. His head had fallen forward, and his arms were folded across his breast. But that he stood erect I should have thought him dead, so still was he.

Tears

I jumped to my feet and looked into his face, down which great tears were dropping silently. I touched him on the shoulder.

"Bob, my dear old chum, Bob, forgive me. For God's sake forgive me for intruding on your misery."

I looked at him. I will never forget his face. No heartbroken woman's could have been sadder. He slowly raised his head, then staggered and grasped the flicker-stand for support.

"Don't, Jim, don't—don't ask me to forgive you. Oh, Jim, Jim, my old friend, forgive me for my madness; forget what I said to you, forget the brute you just saw and think of me as of old, when I would have plucked out my tongue if I had caught it saying a harsh word to the best and truest friend man ever had.

"Jim, forget it all. I was mad. I am mad. I have been mad for a long time, but it cannot last much longer.

"I know it can't, and, Jim, by all our past love, by the memories of the dear old days at St. Paul's and at Harvard, the dear old days of hope and happiness, when we planned for the future, try to think of me only as you knew me then, as you know that I should now be, but for the 'System's' curse."

The clerks were pounding on the door; through the glass showed many forms. They had been gathering for minutes while Bob talked in his low, sad tone, a tone that no one could believe came from the same mouth that a few moments before had poured forth a flood of brutal heartlessness.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

MRS. SAGE MAKES HER Y. M. C. A. GIFT $350,000

NEW YORK, March 28.—At a meeting of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association yesterday it was announced that Mrs. Russell Sage had added $100,000 to her recent donation of $250,000 for the building of a home for the committee.

When Mrs. Sage examined the plans prepared, she decided that an additional gift would be required.

PROTEST AT WORCESTER TROLLEY FARE INCREASE

Following the poor service extended all Winter by the Boston & Albany railroad to residents along the road from Boston to Worcester, comes the announcement that the Boston & Worcester electric road is to advance its fare five cents from Brookline to the Wellesley-Natick line, a distance of eight miles, which will affect all persons in that division and west of it. The reasons given for the increased fare are that the company increased the wages of its employes and that the expense of care and maintenance of the road has advanced.

When the wage increase was made, President Shaw of the road said that it was due to the big business earnings of the road last year and that he wanted to reward the men for their good work in increasing the company's business and to encourage them to do better work.

All along the line protests are coming in. At the town meeting held in Wellesley last Monday evening it was voted to ask the management of the Boston & Worcester and of the Natick and Cochituate roads to adopt a free transfer system. The Board of Selectmen is to carry the request to the management of both roads. The fare had previously been fifteen cents from Wellesley to Boston. With a free transfer system it would have been ten cents. Under the advanced fare it is twenty cents, without free transfers.

It was said in Wellesley that the road had no authority under its franchise to increase its fares. This, however, is found by the BOSTON AMERICAN to be incorrect. In the case of Keefe vs. the Lexington Street Railway Company two years ago the Supreme Court held that the company could raise its rates. The Boston & Worcester does not come under this head, however, for its franchise is under a special act of the General Court and does not specify rates in running through towns.

Selectman Seife of Wellesley said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter: "The question of the raise of fare is causing much interest in my town and I feel sure that the Board of Selectmen will be called upon to present a petition to the Railroad Commissioners."

The Boston & Worcester's claim that the increase was necessary because of the increase of wages and price of running the road is offset by the figures set forth in their last annual report filed with the Railroad Commissioners, November 20, 1906, an extract from which is printed herewith.

Citizens all along the road had planned to give the company much business this Summer, because of the poor Boston & Albany service and this, with the same amount of business as done last year, it is argued, would easily pull the road through without possible loss of dividends.

ORDERS OPEN SHOP ON CANAL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The President has served notice that the open shop principle must prevail in the machine shops on the isthmus. While the reports of a strike among the workmen on the canal zone are denied at the office of the Canal Commission here, it is admitted that efforts are being made to unionize them and enforce the closed shop rule.

Owing to the firm stand which the President has taken in the matter this has thus far been prevented, but at the same time the labor situation is not entirely satisfactory to those who have to deal with canal matters.

The steam shovel men, who are now making the demands for increased wages, are organized, and once before have been in a position to force the government to increase their pay.

Secretary Taft, who is soon to visit the Isthmus, will investigate their claims. He will also investigate other phases of the labor situation.

TRAINMEN'S WKAGES RAISED.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., March 28.—A 10 per cent. increase of wages was granted all trainmen on the Dunkirk, Allegheny & Pittsburg railroad yesterday.

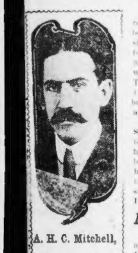
WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

NO SPRING WATER FOR YOUR UNCLE CY YOUNG

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.



A. H. C. Mitchell,

Baseball Expert for the Boston American.

WEST BADEN, Ind., March 28.—The game between the regulars and the Yannigans, postponed from yesterday, will be played at French Lick this afternoon unless another shower comes up. If rain falls it's all off with the game, for the grounds become very slippery and the ball players will not take a chance with wrenched legs. Pat Powers, who arranged the game, left for New York this morning. The last twenty-four hours have been mostly idleness for the Boston men. It is true they took morning exercise, but yesterday's rain cut them out on diamond activity in the afternoon.

A few of the players walked over to French Lick Springs, while Tannehill, Dinneen, Freeman and Sullivan took horseback rides. They would not rest more than an hour in the saddle, for fear of not being able to get out of bed in the morning. The other players just loafed about the hotel, making frequent trips to the springs. All hands are taking the water except Uncle Cy Young. "I feel all right," says the veteran, "and what's the use going against a game I don't know anything about."

Big Time Ahead for Armbruster.

The boys still continue in fine condition, except now and then some of them develops a slight ailment. Big Bill Dinneen has drafted a Class B boil on his off hind heel. He did not put on a uniform for yesterday's morning practice nor could he be induced to trip the light fantastic at the ball given the guests of the hotel last night. The boys went in and looked on, but they pleaded as an excuse for not choosing partners that they had not brought their evening clothes with them.

A big time is in store for Charley Armbruster on Sunday next, when the Boston catcher, who is a Cincinnati boy, makes his appearance at League Park in the Pork City against the Reds in the first game of the series with the Bostons.

The Cincinnati Eagles will turn out in full force and many social and athletic clubs will be there in a body to honor "Buster."

A handsome charm will be presented to Charley by a number of Cincinnatians. On Tuesday evening Armbruster will be initiated into the Eagles and then there will be more big doings. He has a big following and it will be his first appearance in Cincinnati as a member of the Boston Americans.

Walked Three Miles to Fish and Not a Bite.

George Winter and Kroh, the big left-handed pitcher, went out on a fishing expedition, walking three miles on the promise of good sport. Four hours later they returned without a bite except those administered by the local bugs.

There was a hot argument on the subject of precious stones on the piazza this morning, Stahl, Freeman, Collins and Criger taking a leading part. It finally led to the purchase by Criger for $210 of the piece of ice Freeman wears in a ring on his finger.

After the deal was completed the players gave Criger the laugh, but the catcher said he had a customer who would pay $300 for it and the laughter ceased.

Captain Stahl is improving rapidly. He took practice with his men and thinks that in a day or so he will be himself again.

The players have ceased talking about his resignation as manager. Everybody feels that the club will go along nicely with President Taylor running the club except when it is on the playing field. The sensation died out as quickly as it was sprung. Mr. Taylor is still in Chicago and probably will not rejoin his men until they reach Indianapolis on Saturday morning. The boys will have to get up at 4:30 a. m. to make the train for Indianapolis, and they do not relish it a bit.

THREE CLEVER DORCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL BALL PLAYERS.

All the candidates are at work now and promise to make a great showing on the diamond this season.

DELANEY. CLAY. KEENAN.

CARROLL CAN FIGHT.

Johnny Carroll, the hard-hitting New York fighter, who is one of the few who has a knockout on Sailor Burke and who put a quick finish on Fred Bradley, will fight anybody his weight, and will be seen shortly at Lymansville, R. I., against one of the strongest men in New England.

CAMPBELL'S NEW RECORDS.

Campbell, last night, made new records for high average and high run in the class C amateur billiard tournament in progress at the Hub Palace, in his match with Smith, whom he beat, 150 to 75. Campbell's average was 4 14-34, and his best run 40.

YANNIGANS MADE VERY GOOD START

Special to the Boston American.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., March 28.—The Yannigans started out bravely in the effort to make the big boys bite the dust yesterday and they looked good, for one lone inning, but after that Cy Young says they took a balloon trip over the pines and were still sailing when last heard from.

Norman Hopkins, a local star, beat all the big leaguers in the fanning game, carrying two scalps of wind jammers dangling at his belt, while one each was the largest number that Flaherty, Lindaman and Brush could boast of.

Al. Bridwell walked off with the batting honors, landing for five clean bingles. Al came near spraining his knee sliding home in the ninth inning, but Doctor Edwards does not think it will prove serious.

Orendoff showed up in good shape behind the bat and on the bases for the regulars.

Flaherty's lame shoulder is getting into shape again. Brush showed up better in the box yesterday than on any previous day. Howard did some good work with the stick, landing for two two-base hits.

Five pickaninnies, the oldest of whom was fourteen, were arrested yesterday and in their possession the missing gloves, mitts, balls and bats were found. The players are feeling good over the recovery. The score:

GEORGE THEOBALD FAVORS THE RUNNING HORSE GAME

Fresh from Bennings track, George A. Theobald, the Concord, N. H., horseman and partner of James Y. Gatcomb in the racing stable comprising such noted campaigners as Audubon Boy, 1:59¼; Phalla, 2:04½; Grace Bond, 2:09¼, etc., arrived in Boston to-day.

Mr. Theobald has devoted the most of the past Winter with the runners, having spent three months at the California tracks. At one time he was over $5,000 ahead of the game, but getting in badly toward the last on several strong tips only succeeded in quitting some $1,500 to the good.

Likes the Runners.

However, he likes the runners, and says that next Winter will again find him on the Pacific Coast. At Bennings, too, the ponies did not run just according to his dope, yet his losses amounted to a mere bagatelle for him.

"This will be my final season with the harness horses," he declared to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "as I'm now getting together a string of runners, and have already secured my jockey for next year, one of the most promising boys that ever sat a saddle on a California track.

"With the enforcement of the anti-betting laws on the trotting tracks, and the huge expense of carrying along the trotters nine months in the year for only a couple of months' racing, has caused me to decide on the shift to the runners.

Expenses Reduced.

"Why, a groom can take care of two runners in splendid shape, when he can only look after one trotter. Then there are the harnesses, boots, sulkies, jogging carts, etc., required, which in itself amounts to a small fortune in a big stable. A bridle, saddle and a few cuff boots fit a runner out to perfection. Just the extra expense of shoeing a trotter over a runner will buy the rigging for the latter and leave a balance on the right side of the ledger.

"As to racing, I can campaign over the Eastern tracks through the Summer, then ship to New Orleans, or to California and have plenty doing the balance of the year. In this way a stable can be making money all of the time, and not be laid up from October till the middle of next July without the opportunity of starting in a race, like the trotters. Yes, sir, nothing but the runners for me just as soon as I free myself from the ones I now have."

"BE A MOLLYCODDLE," SAYS NELSON

No. 7, Nelson Series—

"Be a mollycoddle in regard to your health; keep a reserve fund of strength and energy; don't eat pie or smoke too many cigars or cigarettes," says Battling Nelson in the seventh of his series of articles written especially for the BOSTON AMERICAN. Nelson's article, which tells how to avoid becoming a "Has Been," follows:

BY BATTLING NELSON.

I'm going to tackle a big subject today.

It is a subject that is vitally interesting to at least 100,000 people in Boston and more than 10,000,000 people in the United States.

The subject of this article is:

How to keep from becoming a Has Been.

A Has Been is a person who has lost his grip.

He is all in.

That doesn't mean that he is old.

It means he has started rolling down the hill when he ought to be up at the top.

A champion who has fought one fight too many and then tries to begin all over again is a Has Been.

A plunger who has cornered the market and won a lot of coin and then gets caught in the next squeze and loses all he made, and who tries to get on his feet again by playing long shots and puts and calls, is a Has Been.

JOIN DOWN AND OUTERS.

Lawyers, doctors, statesmen, financiers, ball players, fighters, presidents, reporters and bootblacks all over the land dread the time when they will join the down and outs.

There are some things a man can't stay at and keep at the top of his class.

Fighting is only one of the things.

Any game that requires a man to live all the time on his nerves will eventually slow him up and cause him to lose his punch.

The question is, how can we keep ourselves keyed up to high pitch with the least tax on our energies and thus remain at our best the longest possible time?

I want to say right here that I know of no panacea that can cure a Has Been.

The general rule is that nobody ever comes back from Has Been Land. That's why when a man loses his fortune or a champion gets knocked out his friends all desert him. They know that it's a million to one that he doesn't come back.

And the world has no use for a dead one.

The shrewdest thing a man can do to retain his powers is to begin conserving them before they show any signs of decline.

Give your health as much attention when you are sound as a dollar as you would if bad symptoms were developing.

Mollycoddle yourself.

I mean just that.

After every fight, whether it is in the ring or in the office at your daily tasks, use every precaution to restore the tissues, the nerve energy and the wear and tear on your body which you have lost.

When a race horse comes back from a hard race look at the way they groom him.

They "baby" the animal.

They bathe him, fix him a nice soft bed, give him the best kind of food, watch carefully lest he overfeed or overdrink. They see that he gets a good, undisturbed rest.

Well, if a race horse needs that kind of attention, don't you think a man requires some kind of attention.

Now here is something I want to tell you.

No man who can sleep well and eat well ever is sent to a sanitarium or to West Baden or any other place where they patch up broken down Has Beens.

If a man is normally constituted and gets enough work and exercise to make him tired and also lots of fresh air he ought to be able to sleep from eight to ten hours every night. And this he OUGHT to do. And the first three hours of his sleep ought BEFORE MIDNIGHT.

Late hours do more to break a man's health than anything I know of except the excessive use of alcoholic stimulants or other excesses of that nature.

The bad effects of liquor are so well known that I am not going to touch on that subject.

But next to sleeping a man ought to give unusual attention to his food.

It pays to be finicky.

It pays to insist that one's food is thoroughly cooked.

It pays a man to study his system and to learn what agrees with him and what he cannot digest.

Then there is the curse of pastry.

You don't find many topnotchers who eat pie.

Go to a convention of Has Beens and watch them at lunch.

They all drink coffee.

They all eat in a hurry as if the last train was going in a few minutes.

They eat everything that is bad for them and then top it off with pie.

I haven't eaten a dozen pieces of pie in my life.

I never drink coffee.

I don't smoke or chew or drink.

Since I have been fighting reflect on the number of champions who have drifted into the oblivion of Has Been land.

No matter what you do you cannot retain your physical and mental powers unless you eat well and take plenty of exercise in the open air.

SAVE YOUR ENERGIES.

A man who does that is not going to be a Has Been.

There is one thing in favor of Mr. Has Been.

At one time he was the real goods.

He has a much better record than Mr. Never Was.

His only trouble was that he neglected to keep a surplus of health; he squandered his reserve fund.

He owled around too late nights; he didn't have time to take proper exercise; he bolted his meals; drank too much coffee and smoked too many cigarettes or cigars.

If he had started mollycoddling himself when his powers were at their best he wouldn't have struck the toboggan so soon.

NEW DATE SET FOR NEXT AUTO SHOW IN NEW YORK

By J. C. Kerrison.

The annual automobile show of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers will be held in Madison Square, opening on Thursday, October 31, next, and continuing for perhaps ten instead of seven days, as heretofore. This is putting the show at least two months ahead of the dates heretofore found acceptable, and bores somewhat on the independent manufacturers, who had figured on holding theirs in November, a month previous to the one held last year.

The change of date had been anticipated, but it was hardly believed that so early a date would be finally selected. However, there is really no reason why the show should not be held in November, as the majority of manufacturers have their models on the road some few weeks before that time.

The date of the Chicago show has likewise been changed, but there is really no reason to expect that the Boston show date will be changed from March, in which month it has been held heretofore.

* * *

General Charles S. Bartlett has been attacked by the motor microbe. He has seen other statesmen and lawyers fall before the onward march of this particular fever. He was a constant visitor at the recent automobile show, and yesterday the microbe developed to its full extent, General Bartlett purchasing a 40-horespower Berkshire, which is to be delivered to him in the very near future.

* * *

The monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Bay State Automobile Association will be held on Monday next, when matters relating to the forthcoming outdoor season will be thoroughly discussed.

* * *

The hearing on the proposed taxation or registration of motor cars will come before the committee on taxation at the State House this morning. A large attendance is assured. There is reason to believe that the committee will report favorably on the measure.

* * *

President H. O. Smith of the Premier Motor Car Company is spending a few days in this city as the guest of his local representative, C. G. Squier. Mr. Smith is much pleased with the season's outlook, and especially with the favorable reception being given his particular line of cars in this city.

* * *

A. E. Morrison yesterday received word that Mr. Mathewson in the Oldsmobile runabout had recently annexed the Denver to Colorado Springs road record. He covered the distance in 2 hours 11 minutes, which is 17 minutes better than the previous mark.

Notes of the Harness Horses

And now Editor Toman of the Trotter and Pacer declares that when A. L. Thomas took Mainsheet, 2:05¼, away from the judges at Syracuse, N. Y., last season he was laboring under an attack of "brainstorm," or words to that effect, as the following shows: "But an imperious man temporarily bereft of reason by disappointment or the belief that he was not getting a square deal." Thomas will try for reinstatement in May.

* * *

[illegible] W. Parlin, editor of the American Horse Breeder, will celebrate his seventieth birthday April 17. Thirty-one years ago he began a horse column in the Boston Sunday Budget. After a few years the proprietor transferred the department edited by Mr. Parlin to the American Cultivator, and its expanded growth in time caused the establishment of the American Horse Breeder. In all of these years it is undoubtedly a fact that Mr. Parlin has done more to advance the light harness horse interests in New England than any other writer on turf and breeding topics.

* * *

It is noticed that one of the liberal nominators in the futurity events this Spring has been Thomas W. Lawson. When the produce of these matrons from Dreamwold Farm come along it is inferred that Mr. Lawson will have them out trying for the honors going with futurity winners.

* * *

J. Frank Howland of Boston has sold to I. W. Pottle, Portland, Me., the black pacing mare, Mamie, that has been a trial over a two-lap track in 2:26¼, and eighths at a 2:08 gait. Mr. Howland has a stock farm in Paris, Me., where he is breeding the light harness horse, his premier stallion being American Law, 2:22¼.

* * *

Greenleaf Clark, one of the foremost speedway drivers of Haverhill, Mass., has been cutting quite a swath recently with a new purchase, the trotting gelding, Pooh Bah, 2:20¼, which he bought from Irving Rowe, Portland, Me.

The prominent starting judge, Frank Subert, has so far recovered from his serious illness as to be able to take short walks daily.

DORCHESTER HIGH HAS MANY DIAMOND STARS

Dorchester High School's baseball team will open the season next Wednesday afternoon on the Dunbar avenue grounds, Dorchester, having for an opponent the fast Milton High aggregation, and if paper figures count for anything, a fast game will surely result.

That Dorchester High will once more soar to the championship class, and from the abundance of material from which to pick a winner, a most successful season on the diamond, is predicted by the admirers of the team.

Captain Kearney Delaney and Coach Fred Woodcock are highly pleased at the way the candidates have handled themselves. The team has been training for the last three weeks in the high school gymnasium, but expect if the present weather keeps up, the boys will be given outdoor work, and the general weeding process will then commence, until the nine is perfected.

Woodcock Coach.

Coach Fred Woodcock will handle the large array of pitchers who, from their present showing, can hold their own against all comers. Max Clay, the old reliable, and holder of the Interscholastic strike-out record, he also being easily the best pitcher in the Interscholastic and Boston High School leagues last season, is out again for the team. Besides Clay there are Chat Spaulding, Frank Riley, Kemp and Perry, all good men on the rubber. The receiving end will be taken care of by Keenan, Hanley, Hoernle, Culthers and Daley, all of last year's nine, and their experience ought help in making a championship team. Of Keenan and Hoernle great things are expected this season, both playing for all there is in them to capture the catching position.

Captain Kearney Delaney, the best ball tosser in a high school team, will take care of the first sack. The other positions are being fought for with great determination.

Of the new material, there is Connolly, of last year's Jordan, Marsh team; Oakes, an infielder of no mean quality, of last year's Grammar School League; and Sullivan, who, from present appearances, has the ear-marks of a crack-a-jack second baseman. It is expected that Keenan and Hoernle will take care of the receiving end entirely, and that Daley, Hanley and Culthers will make the nine in other positions.

Mr. Anderson, school manager of the baseball team, is greatly pleased over the propects of the team, and says that the schedule is one of the best the team has had for years. The schedule is as follows:

The Schedule.

April 3—Milton High at Dorchester.
April 6—Everett High at Dorchester.
April 10—Medford High at Dorchester.
April 13—Cambridge Latin at Dorchester.
April 17—Hyde Park High at Dorchester.

DONOVAN WILL COACH.

The Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association, through the efforts of Herbert Holton, secretary of the association, and Captain Winsor of the Noble & Greenough crew, has secured "Pat" Donovan to coach the school crews this season. Donovan has had charge of the school crews quartered at the Union Boat Club house ever since the boys took up rowing. He has been very successful in turning out winning crews. John Grainey of the B. A. A. will be the other coach.

MR. B. WALCOTT IS OUTPOINTED AT ROCKLAND

ROCKLAND, Me., March 27.—Belfield Walcott of Boston and Tom Sawyer of this city, champion welter-weight of Maine, went six rounds here before 800 people and gave a fine exhibition. In the first and fifth rounds Walcott was on the mat once in each round. Sawyer gave a good account of himself, and if a decision had been rendered Sawyer would have been the victor.

In the opening round Sawyer had the better of the fighting, knocking down his opponent, but Walcott was on his feet in an instant. Walcott's body blows during the second and third rounds worried Sawyer some, but the last two rounds were strongly in favor of Sawyer. In the sixth round the infighting of both was fast, although doing but little damage.

On account of Maine's new boxing law no decision was given. Both men weighed about 138 pounds. In the preliminaries Dave Sawyer of this city and Bob Leads, formerly of Philadelphia, boxed six rounds, while Young Handy and Billy Pousle of Lewiston went six rounds in a very exciting bout.

LOOKS EASY FOR GOULD

LONDON, March 28.—Eustace H. Miles has decided not to defend his title to the international court tennis championship in the tournament which is to begin here April 24. The withdrawal of Mr. Miles is regarded as leaving the field clear to Jay Gould.

Smashing the Piano Trust

We Licked the Combination in 22 Cities Lately

Our agents swooped down upon 22 New England cities, armed with Uncle Sam's best ammunition—good old greenbacks—and bought every Trust piano that they could lay their hands on. The poor small Piano Trust Dealers and agents who have been tied up to the combination, and who have been laying back to sell in a high trust market, got frightened at the strength we have shown in our fight with the Trust, and surrendered to us at prices that would make you laugh. They could not sell to the public at Trust prices because we were underselling them. The Trust would not buy the pianos back, so the poor victims threw Trust agreements, contracts and all to the winds and sold out to us at revenge prices. Just read the smashing we gave the Piano Trust in this last battle. We bought at battle prices 245 new Trust Pianos in the following cities:

PORTLAND, ME.	7 Pianos	FALL RIVER, MASS.	7 Pianos
BANGOR, ME.	5 Pianos	LAWRENCE, MASS.	10 Pianos
AUGUSTA, ME.	4 Pianos	WORCESTER, MASS.	22 Pianos
MANCHESTER, N. H.	8 Pianos	SPRINGFIELD, MASS.	18 Pianos
CONCORD, N. H.	6 Pianos	HAVERHILL, MASS.	11 Pianos
NASHUA, N. H.	7 Pianos	HARTFORD, CONN.	15 Pianos
ST. ALBANS, VT.	4 Pianos	NEW HAVEN, CONN.	22 Pianos
BURLINGTON, VT.	6 Pianos	NEW LONDON, CONN.	8 Pianos
MONTPELIER, VT.	3 Pianos	BRIDGEPORT, CONN.	7 Pianos
LOWELL, MASS.	11 Pianos	PROVIDENCE, R. I.	31 Pianos
LYNN, MASS.	16 Pianos	PAWTUCKET, R. I.	19 Pianos

Do you know what we are going to do? We are going to put The Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' sacrifice tag on every one of them and scatter them throughout N. E. at No Profit Prices. We will scatter them as seeds among the people that they may produce a knowledge of intelligent piano buying—every one we sell will prove to the public that the Trust has been charging from 200 to 400 per cent. more for their pianos than the moral law allows. Buy your piano from us; no matter what make you want we have it. Help us to fight the Trust and we will make it worth your while. Call if you can and call early.

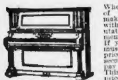
PIANO SENSE VS. NONSENSE



When you are thinking of buying a standard make of piano, one with an established reputation, you must remember two things. If you buy it new you must pay a reasonable price. If you buy it second hand you must pay a reasonable price. This last reasonable price is based almost wholly on the age and condition of the piano. When you read several different prices quoted on a well-known piano, use your piano sense, which should tell you that there is a reason for the difference. You must find the difference yourself by investigation. It is nonsense to think you can buy any piano worth buying for a fool price. We invite your careful investigation of the standard makes in our Honest Bargain list. Some of the pianos have never been used, some slightly used. Everything guaranteed. More bargains of same makes at last week's prices. Buy now. Prices going up.

Young Men, Old Men, Beware of 'The Lazy Season'

Just Now, the AVERAGE Man Sags Down and the OTHER Man WINS THE RACE

Readers, Spring has commenced. The Easter hats and clothes are walking around gayly.

In the air already men feel the peculiar lazy Spring season.

This is the time when the ordinary man finds it interesting to stop and look at a bird dragging a piece of straw through the air.

It is the time when people don't hurry quite so much, when the system seems to say, in every cell, to the brain managing the body, "Please take things calmly."

This is the time of year when the man who has been working hard, or pretty hard—NONE OF US REALLY WORKS HARD—begins to say to himself, "Oh, what's the use?"

It is the time when there seems to be a good reason for doing almost everything EXCEPT WORK. It is a time when nature is very beautiful, when the country is attractive.

IT IS THE TIME WHEN A GREAT MANY MEN LOSE THEIR REAL CHANCE IN LIFE BY LETTING OTHERS PASS THEM.

We don't advise readers to work themselves to death; we would not advise them to ignore the beauties of the Spring.

But we do, from a sense of duty, say THIS to them:

The successful man gets ahead WHEN THE OTHERS ARE SITTING STILL. The real man makes his progress, establishes himself, GAINS THE LEAD THAT HE HOLDS, when the others are begining to rest, to "think it over," and let down their energies.

We hope that all of our readers will enjoy their Spring and Summer. We hope that they will all get a fair share of vacation, that they will all see the green grass and the trees often, and enjoy them.

When you are playing, play. But when you are working, WORK, even in the Springtime and the Summertime.

Hard work from now until cold weather comes back again will give you a lead, a possibility of success that you might not be able to get in ten Winters of hard work, alternated with ten Springs and ten Summers of carelessness.

At this time of the year other men are not trying. If you try YOU CAN GET SUCCESS.

AFRAID OF THE PEOPLE

The Franchise Grabbers, the Czar and the Transcript Don't Like to Let the Voters Suggest Their Own Laws

The Boston Transcript, speaking of the public opinion bill now pending in the Legislature, says:

> It will make heavier the burden upon conscientious men in the Legislature who are trying to stand out against some tide of popular clamor when its essential idea has found formal approval in a public opinion vote.

Translated into plain English this means that the public opinion bill will make it harder for members of the Legislature to avoid executing the will of the people.

THE MEN WHO DESIRE TO STEAL FRANCHISES OR OTHER PUBLIC PROPERTY OBJECT TO ANY LAW WHICH MAKES IT DIFFICULT FOR LEGISLATORS TO AVOID ACTING IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE.

The Czar of Russia feels the same way about the Duma. He doesn't want the Duma to enact the laws which the people of Russia want.

Fortunately this isn't Russia. It is Massachusetts, and so long ago as 1780, when the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts was adopted, there was incorporated in its bill of rights the solemn assertion that THE PEOPLE HAVE A RIGHT TO GIVE INSTRUCTIONS TO THEIR REPRESENTATIVES.

The only method at present by which the people can control their representatives, or indicate their disapproval of acts against the public interest, is by defeating them for re-election. In other words, they can punish the representative AFTER THE DAMAGE HAS BEEN DONE.

In the OLD days such representatives as Samuel Adams and John Hancock were INSTRUCTED by the people. In THESE days such representatives as "Bill" Turtle and John Cole think it is an affront to their dignity to suggest that the people be allowed merely to EXPRESS THEIR OPINIONS by ballot.

The vote on the public opinion bill will be watched with a good deal of interest.

The BOSTON AMERICAN promises to convey to the public full information as to the action of the people's representatives on this bill to give the people a right to express their opinion of their own affairs for the guidance of their representatives.

The Grand Opera War

By James J. Montague

My child, if you hunger for hasty wealth, and hope that you soon will be
Possessor of cash that will put to blush a piker like poor John D.,
Don't start out to make
That opulent stake
By modern financial thrift,
For the people might nail you
And speedily jail you
In the light of the late uplift.
It is easier far
To become a star
In the heavy opera line,
And get handed outright
Seven thousand a night
For throwing down Hammerstein.

TIME was when any old way to wealth had never a stain to blot it,
And no one questioned you why or how, so long as they knew you'd got it;
But the late complaint
Of the thing called taint
Is much in the public ear,
So grow a voice
And you'll soon rejoice
In a million or two a year.
Get Conried to make a few bids on you, and an African diamond mine
Won't pay a tenth of the sum you'll get from the envious Hammerstein.

LOOK at Bonci, who hasn't a share of Cobalt or Sandard Oil,
Who never could trim the easier lamb or grind down a son of toil;
In a couple of days
He has had a vast raise
And is hotly hoping for more;
While Signor Caruso
Is hinting a few, so
His pay will begin soon to soar.
So keep out of Wall Street and Transit and such and get on the Opera line,
And you'll get your own figure, no matter how much, from Conried and Hammerstein.

DO IDEAS WEIGH ANYTHING?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I read with much interest your article by Dr. MacDougall in regard to weighing of human beings before and after death, in which he says the loss of weight after death seemed to be a fraction of an ounce less than before.

Now, it would not surprise me that our thoughts and ideas have some weight, which would account for the small difference in weight after the person had expired. It is natural to suppose that people, before dying, have their minds filled with all kinds of ideas, especially concerning the loved ones they are leaving behind, the life they have led and the great unknown to which they imagine they are going. Don't you think this more reasonable than the soul idea?

The Muse and the Man

By Wex Jones

A poetess has sued for divorce because her husband laughs at her verses.

WHEN Smith came to breakfast his wife would recite
A poem of passion red hot,
And Smith would protest that her verses were warm,
But his coffee and biscuits were not.

"Was there ever a metre," said she, "that was sweeter
Than mine in 'The Loveliest Lass'?"
And Smith would remark, "You don't write in the dark,
By the meter that measures the gas."

And when she bestowed on her husband an ode
"To Penn, the Original Quaker,"
He'd say, with a sneer, "That doesn't come near
To what's owed to the butcher and baker."

Oh, Smith was a brute that the muse couldn't suit—
When listening to "Spring and Its Meaning,"
He'd say, "This here Spring doesn't gain me a thing—
Why don't you go in for Spring cleaning?"

The churl was so rash as to say corned beef hash
With a poached egg placed lightly upon it,
Would tickle him stronger and stay with him longer
Than an epic or lyric or sonnet.

So the poet's recourse was to get a divorce,
To spend all of her time on her book;
And Smith, who was left of his Sappho bereft,
Oh, he smilingly married a cook.

A Duke's Diary

MONDAY—Met a beautiful American girl to-day.

TUESDAY—Find that Miss Scrapple is sole heir to $30,000,000. Knew I was in love with her.

WEDNESDAY—Made love to Ethel. I adore her. How I admire the free and frank ways of the American girl, her delightful breeziness!

THURSDAY—Proposed to Mr. Scrapple. Told me to see Ethel. Found a rude young business man with her.

FRIDAY—That young man, who hasn't a cent, again with Ethel. When he left I told her that I loved her and that I could be hers for a settlement of $[illegible],000,000. She said, "Nit." Horribly crude ways these American girls have.

SATURDAY—Announcement of Miss Scrapple's engagement to that young business fellow. Remonstrated with Mr. Scrapple. He said, "Ethel runs her own funeral." Bah!

HELLO MUGGY. HOW D'LIKE YOUR NEW JOB? MUCH BETTER THAN RUNNING THE ONE IN THE STORE ISN'T IT. FINE HOTEL YOU'VE GOT HERE ALL RIGHT. SAY, I'D LIKE TO BRING THE GIRLS UP HERE SOME EVENING AND SHOW THEM AROUND. WHEN ARE YOU OFF?
GREAT! I'LL MEET YOU IN THE MAIN LOBBY ABOUT 8.30 SAY. ARE THE GIRLS PRETTY?
TO-NIGHT? GOOD! I'LL INTRODUCE YOU AS THE MANAGER. BE SURE AND WEAR YOUR GLAD RAGS.
1
GOOD AFTERNOON GIRLS. SAY, DON'T YOU WANT TO SEE THE NEW HOTEL JUST OPENED OVER ON THE AVENUE? COME UP WITH US THIS EVENING AND WE'LL SHOW YOU THROUGH. THE MANAGER, MR MUGGLES IS AN OLD FRIEND OF OURS, AND DOUBTLESS HE'LL MAKE IT VERY PLEASANT FOR YOU.
YES, PREVIOUS TO COMING TO OUR CITY, HE HAS BEEN MANAGER OF SEVERAL OF THE MOST CELEBRATED EUROPEAN HOTELS.
2
BEAUTIFUL ENTRANCE IS IT NOT? I WONDER-AH- HERE HE COMES NOW. MISS MILLIONBUCKS ALLOW ME TO PRESENT MY FRIEND MANAGER MUGGLES. YES, THE GIRLS EXPRESSED A DESIRE TO SEE YOUR FINE ESTABLISHMENT, SO WE THOUGHT WE WOULD PRESUME ON YOUR GOOD NATURE AND BRING THEM TO SEE IT.
YOU EXPECT COUNT VON DE CHEESE AS A GUEST NEXT WEEK DO YOU NOT?
INDEED, IT WILL BE A PLEASURE
3
THIS, LADIES IS THE PALM ROOM. TO OUR RIGHT WE HAVE THE ART AND MUSIC ROOMS.
ISN'T IT JUST LOVELY
MOORISH STYLE OF ARTITECTURE ISN'T IT? THE ORIENTALS HAVE THE TRUE IDEA OF LUXURIOUSNESS.
4
WE'LL NOW INSPECT THE UPPER FLOORS. WHERE CAN THE ELEVATOR BOY BE? THIS IS REALLY VERY SURPRISING, I SHALL HAVE TO DISCHARGE HIM FOR NEGLECT OF DUTY.
YES, SUCH LAXNESS OF DUTY SHOULDN'T BE CONDONED.
5
AH- HERE'S MUGGLES NOW. I'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR YOU EVERYWHERE. YOU'LL HAVE TO RUN THE ELEVATOR TO-NIGHT AS THE OTHER BOY IS SICK. YOU MAY HAVE TO-MORROW NIGHT OFF INSTEAD.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Declares That Sympathy Is the Keynote to the Great Harmony of the Whole Universe

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

IN these days of cheerful religion, taught by metaphysical schools, it is well to learn the happy secret of keeping a mental balance between stoicism and indifference and hysteria and nerves. It is wise to know how to carry your troubles optimistically and to avoid burdening your friends with them.

It is wise to know how to keep your friends from talking continually of their sorrows and worries and anxieties, and thus increasing them.

The Human Iceberg

BUT it is not wise to become a human iceberg, a stone or a chunk of putty, utterly devoid of sympathy or feeling.

I have known several people whose natures changed from loving, helpful warmth and tenderness to cold, stolid indifference through metaphysical studies.

These people belonged to no one sect or school. I have found them among the "New Thought," the "Mental Scientist," the "Christian Scientist," the "Divine Being" and the no-name schools of metaphysical students. So it is not the fault of the creed, but of the individual.

It is an unfortunate thing for the individual, the creed and for the world, however, when such a result follows the study of spiritual and mental laws.

It gives a great power to attain the perfect balance; it is a loss of power to swing down to either coldness or hysteria.

A Change for the Worse

I HAVE seen a woman who was so full of pity for her kind that she wept at the sight of a tired old day laborer on the street change so utterly after becoming a "Scientist" that she stared like a wooden image, silently and dumbly, when her best friend complained of feeling ill.

And I confess that the woman's old condition, unbalanced nerves and extravagant feeling seemed preferable to her later "spiritual development."

The true religion lies in being always sympathetic, and entering into the state of mind of the unawakened and the undeveloped, and then knowing how to rouse, cheer, divert and strengthen.

It is not lessening your spiritual dignity to say to your friend who tells you she is physically ill or mentally sad, "Well, tell me all about it—it will do you good to talk it over with a friend; then we will see if there is not a law by which you can be made to feel better."

The Blessing of Tears

NOR is it a weakness, if in the hour of your own trial, when you are "bracing up" and endeavoring to prove to the world that "all is good, all is cheer, all is health, joy and success," that you let down the tense nerves and "cry it out."

Jesus wept at least once. Why should not we once in a while? On the cross Jesus showed suffering and even doubt of God's remembrance when he said, "My God, why hast Thou forsaken me?"

If such moments come to us or to our friends let us not believe we or they are utterly lost to hope, or that they need cold reproofs of stolid indifference from us.

Jesus was in His last incarnation, yet the human man suffered and doubted temporarily.

We are far behind Him in our development, and it is to be condoned if we have our moments of pain and depression. Let us be sympathetic with one another, first of all! Then helpful, encouraging, strengthening.

But remember, sympathy is the very keynote to the great harmony which the morning stars sing together in the Eternal Spheres.

Without it all is discord.
